Crosley Field, Cincinnati, Oct. 8 (AP)—In one of the daffiest finishes in all World Series history, the Cincinnati Reds' defenses blew up today to let the New York Yankees win their fourth straight world championship by a 7 to 4 ten-inning victory in the fourth game of the 1939 Fall classic.

After fighting back from an early disadvantage into which home runs by Charlie Keller and Bill Dickey had dropped them, the National League champions fell apart like a 1906 jolly in the ninth and tenth innings, and the Yankees, taking advantage of every break, scored five times in those two frames on four hits and four Reds' errors, to pull out the decision.

And for 32,794 fans, lifted to roaring heights of delight by the Reds' seventh-inning three-run scoring spurge, this finish was a heart-breaker. For it came about on a collapse of the one feature that stood out for the Reds in the first three games—their fighting fielding.

This lapse of the Rhineland defenses topped off an up-and-down collection of performances by the Red hurlers who saw action. Tall Paul Derringer started for the Reds, but the loser was Bucky Walters, who took over in the eighth, and thus was charged with his second defeat of the set.

Murphy Winning Pitcher
For the Yankees, Fordham John Murphy, the square-jawed Irishman with the excellent control, received credit for the first series victory of his career, although he saw action in relief roles in each of the last three sets. He entered the game in the seventh, after Oral Hildebrand had retired because of an ailing side and Steve Sundra had been tagged for the Reds' first three runs.

Yanks' Fourth World Crown
Thus the Yankees completed their domination of baseball for the fourth time in a row and for their eighth World's championship. Eleven times they have won the American League pennant.

Today's triumph was their ninth straight series game victory, beginning with the last tilt in the 1937 set, and marked the 29th time in 32 games that they have finished on top of the National Leagues.

Today's victory, however, was virtually an absolute gift. Everything happened in those last two frames—and it all happened to the Reds.

The mess started simply enough when Keller, the hero of yesterday's game with two home runs, led off the ninth with a single. The Yankees were behind 4-2.

Joe DiMaggio followed with a slashing single through short, and the fans came to attention again, their fingers crossed. Bill Dickey went what looked like an easy double play ball to second, and Lonnie Frey made a nice pick-up, but Billy

By HENRY C. CASSIDY

Paris, Oct. 8 (AP)—German troops increased their pressure today against French advance posts on the extreme northern flank of the western front where the French have established strong positions to cover the neutral frontier along the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg.

The French general staff in a communique issued tonight announced that a series of German "surprise attacks" had been repulsed in that sector east of the Moselle river.

French lines in the region form a salient at least two miles within German territory and circle around the hills of the forest of Borg.

French military men consider the wooded heights, which command the Moselle valley and a highway and railroad which parallel the river, one of the most strategic positions they have captured since the war was declared five weeks ago today.

Artillery Shells Planes
With the weather clearing on the northern flank during last night, planes again were reported to have taken the air and artillery began shelling anew.

The heaviest artillery duels were located by the French communique to the south and southwest of Saarlouis, a sector bordering that where French were reported raiding.

The day's activity followed what was officially announced as a "calm night" in which "enemy patrols were repulsed."

French raids were interpreted as a reply to Nazi peace overtures.

French army activity has been increasing steadily since Friday, the day Adolf Hitler put forth his plan for peace on German terms.

German military reaction remained slight. The French army general staff communique said "enemy pat-

Swiss Ordered To Keep the War Out Of Their Campaign

Berne, Oct. 8 (AP)—Swiss Generalissimo Henry Guisan, who has a majority of Switzerland's voters mobilized into a citizens' army, issued an order today to keep the European war issue out of the impending political campaign.

The election for the national council, similar to the United States' House of Representatives, is scheduled Oct. 28-29, and will be decided almost entirely by 500,000 men under arms.

Guisan, who obtained his promotion from colonel to Switzerland's only general by parliamentary action in August, permitted soldiers to vote as they pleased but limited each political party's campaign within the army to an official declaration of its program.

Political observers pointed out that the war issue was not likely to enter politics anyway as a lead.

Moscow, Oct. 8 (AP)—Germany and Soviet Russia have agreed to realize their program of economic collaboration "at rapid pace and on a large scale," a Soviet communique said tonight.

"In particular, agreement was reached that the U. S. S. R. should immediately begin supplying German materials and German filling orders for the U. S. S. R.," the announcement by Tass, official Soviet news agency, said.

The communique was issued following a conference between Vyacheslav Molotov, commissar of Foreign Affairs, and a special German trade delegation headed by Karl Ritter, former German ambassador to Brazil.

"It was agreed in the course of conversation that the economic program concerning which an understanding had been reached during the last visit of the minister of foreign affairs, Joachim von Ribbentrop, to Moscow would be realized by both parties at a rapid pace and on a large scale," Tass said.

The conference followed the visit of Von Ribbentrop to Moscow Sept. 28 and a friendship agreement announced Sept. 29 to "consult each other as to necessary measures" to cooperate to restore peace and to work out an economic program so that "the volume of the German-Soviet exchange of goods will attain a high peak."

Millions in Berlin Believe End of War Is Almost in Sight

By MELVIN K. WHITELEATHER

Berlin, Oct. 8 (AP)—Germans evinced great interest today in the wave of sentiment in the United States favoring mediation by President Roosevelt in the European war.

The German view was that Adolf Hitler's hand remained outstretched to anyone who would grasp it in peace.

Authorized officials have tried to leave no doubt that the fuhrer would welcome a peace initiative from the president of the United States and reports from Washington said many senators, both proponents and opponents of the administration neutrality bill, favored Mr. Roosevelt's stepping in now as a peacemaker.

(Mr. Roosevelt, at his Hyde Park home, sent word to reporters that he had nothing to say at present.)

(Authoritative Washington sources said the government's policy consistently had been that the United States was ready and willing to aid Europe in reaching a general settlement of economic and disarmament problems, but that it would not be drawn into political squabbles.)

Good news of attention is being given in Berlin these days to what goes on in Washington.

One result has been the adoption of an English term—"cash and carry"—into German speech. The Germans have learned to use it while studying Congressional debate on the Roosevelt administration's neutrality proposals.

Long newspaper articles have appeared explaining the "cash and carry" mean supplies bought in the United States would have to be paid for with cash and be transported in non-American ships.

Italy Offers New Pacts to Hungary And Yugoslavia

By DANIEL DELUCE

Budapest, Oct. 8 (AP)—Italy was reported today to have offered new friendship pacts to Yugoslavia and Hungary, adding to the relief of tension which has dominated southeastern Europe since the war began.

Italian radio broadcasts received here said the negotiations, to the two countries, were under way.

Reports of the negotiations were confirmed semi-officially in Belgrade, and similar reports were heard in Bucharest.

(Associated Press dispatches from Rome made no mention of the negotiations.)

With Italian diplomacy so far directed at preserving neutrality in the conflict, the small neutral nations of Southeastern Europe saw their chances of staying out of the war heightened by these reported negotiations.

With Germany occupied on her western front and with Soviet Russia's aims in the Balkans still unknown, diplomats of this section of Europe welcomed prospective collaboration among Italy, Yugoslavia and Hungary as a possible counteraction of the German-Soviet bid for domination in the Balkans.

Balkan diplomats said Adolf Hitler's speech Friday declaring Germany and Soviet Russia together would settle all southeastern Europe's problems had spurred Italy to action to establish her own position in a "Lebensraum" (living space).

An authoritative Yugoslav source said the current negotiations were "only the beginning of something much bigger than a mere treaty."

Should Yugoslavia and Hungary draw closer to Italy, diplomats said Rumania and Bulgaria might well agree to follow suit.

Meade set a trap for the alleged extortionist after the veteran horse pilot was kidnapped at gun point, robbed, and his wife and child threatened if he failed to deliver $4,000.

Finns asserted the trip of their envoy would be different from the visits paid in the last two weeks by the foreign ministers of Estonia and Latvia who came home with pacts allowing Soviet naval and air bases and troops on their soil and giving Russia trade concessions. A Lithuanian delegation is in Moscow on a similar mission.

Finns said their barracks were overflowing with reservists ready to defend the independence of 4,000-000 Finns who lived under Russian rule before the World War.

The extent of the Russian sweep in the Baltic, which formerly was the cockpit of a German-Soviet struggle for power, was indicated when it became known Germany was negotiating with Estonia and Latvia for the repatriation of Germans who live in those countries.

81,500 Germans Involved
About 65,000 Germans in Latvia and 16,500 in Estonia were involved.

Finland decided to accept the Russian invitation for Moscow talks at a special cabinet meeting yesterday and at the same time announced she had called up more military reservists to work on fortifications along the Soviet frontier.

In Helsinki denial was made of foreign reports that Moscow had made demands involving the strategic Åland islands between Sweden and Finland. Finns said no demands of any kind had been advanced.

The Helsinki newspaper Helsingin Sanomat, of which Finnish Foreign Minister Elias Eriko formerly was chief editor, today said the nation was "undivided and unshakable" in her determination to defend her neutrality "with every conceivable means."

It was reported that 4,000 Soviet troops were concentrated on the Estonian frontier ready to march in Tuesday to man newly-granted military bases. About 16,000 more troops were scheduled to follow and about 20,000 were to go to similar bases in Latvia.

War Business from Europe Still An Unknown Quantity in Market

New York, Oct. 8 (AP)—In the sixth week of the conflict between Germany and the Allies, war business from Europe is still an unknown quantity to Wall Street analysts.

The Hitler peace fever last week seemed to add to uncertainty in the financial district over prospects for large-scale orders for fighting supplies from England and France.

The Allies are estimated to have several billions of dollars in cash or its equivalent available for purchase of foodstuffs and munitions in the United States.

But, as some analysts see it, use of this reserve "war chest" depends on:

- (1) Duration of the conflict and more intensive fighting by land and sea than has taken place so far.
- (2) Changes in the U. S. neutrality act to permit a freer flow of orders.
- (3) Protection for Allied shipping against submarines so purchases may be transported to Europe.

Heavy recent buying for inventory and accelerated revival in the capital goods industries—rail equipment, merchant shipping, machine tools, etc.—have produced one of the most vigorous business upturns for this season of the year on record.

The Associated Press industrial index, up for twelve consecutive weeks, has risen to 106.3 per cent of 1929-30 level from 81.6 in mid-May. This is the highest October figure since 1929 and is only two points away from the 1937 recovery high.

Despite this expansion, much unused industrial capacity remains in the United States. In addition, analysts stress, this country still has a large force of unemployed workers and an unprecedented 20-

"Peace at the Price of Poland" Is Opposed by the British Press

By W. T. YARBOROUGH

London, Oct. 8 (AP)—Britain, in close consultation with her Dominions and France, today deliberated upon a reply to Adolf Hitler's peace offer against the background of a press chorus of "no peace at the price of Poland."

On the seas, the war came close to British shores as the Holland-America freighter, Binnendijk, en route from New York to Amsterdam, sank in flames off Weymouth after an explosion. A British warship rescued the crew of 41.

The captain of the 6,873-ton vessel, which carried no passengers, said he was unable to determine immediately whether she was sunk by a mine or a torpedo.

"Hitler's Proposals Nebulous"
"Hitler's proposals are so nebulous they must be greatly clarified before they can become even a basis for discussion," the authoritative British Press Association said in discussing the possibility of a British reply when Prime Minister Chamberlain goes before the House of Commons Wednesday for his weekly war review.

"One of Hitler's difficulties is to find a channel through which to submit amplification or clarification of his speech. Signor Mussolini does not seem willing to act as 'postman.'"

(In Rome, the Fascist press urged Britain and France to accept Hitler's offer.)

(Germans in Berlin evinced great interest in sentiment in the United States Senate favoring mediation by President Roosevelt. Mr. Roosevelt himself remained silent.)

(France broadened attacks on the Western front, apparently by way of putting emphasis on Premier Daladier's reply to Hitler's overture with the declaration that Frenchmen would continue the war until

Victor in the Senate
Today

Washington, Oct. 8 (AP)—Opposition leaders conceded today that the administration would win the first Senate vote on pending neutrality legislation, expected tomorrow on Tuesday, but contended that the ballot would not furnish a true test of sentiment on repeal of the arms embargo.

The vote will be on a motion by Senator Tobey (R-NH) to send the administration bill back to committee. Tobey seeks to split the measure into two bills so as to permit quick enactment of restrictive clauses on shipping while leaving the arms embargo issue to be settled later.

They could have them in a minute if they wanted them, but they are interested only in repeal of the arms embargo," Nye said.

Though accepting the Soviet invitation to important talks in Moscow, Finland indicated firm determination to fight for her independence if necessary since similar invitations to small Baltic states had resulted in sweeping concessions for Russia.

The Finnish minister to Sweden, Juhani Paasikivi, was said by Moscow dispatches to have been named head of the Finnish delegation.

Their Trip Different

Finns asserted the trip of their envoy would be different from the visits paid in the last two weeks by the foreign ministers of Estonia and Latvia who came home with pacts allowing Soviet naval and air bases and troops on their soil and giving Russia trade concessions. A Lithuanian delegation is in Moscow on a similar mission.

Finns said their barracks were overflowing with reservists ready to defend the independence of 4,000-000 Finns who lived under Russian rule before the World War.

The extent of the Russian sweep in the Baltic, which formerly was the cockpit of a German-Soviet struggle for power, was indicated when it became known Germany was negotiating with Estonia and Latvia for the repatriation of Germans who live in those countries.

81,500 Germans Involved
About 65,000 Germans in Latvia and 16,500 in Estonia were involved.

Finland decided to accept the Russian invitation for Moscow talks at a special cabinet meeting yesterday and at the same time announced she had called up more military reservists to work on fortifications along the Soviet frontier.

In Helsinki denial was made of foreign reports that Moscow had made demands involving the strategic Aaland islands between Sweden and Finland. Finns said no demands of any kind had been advanced.

The Helsinki newspaper Helsingin Sanomat, of which Finnish Foreign Minister Eljas Erkkio formerly was chief editor, today said the nation was "undivided and unshakable" in her determination to defend her neutrality "with every conceivable means."

It was reported that 4,000 Soviet troops were concentrated on the Estonian frontier ready to march in Tuesday to man newly-granted military bases. About 16,000 more troops were scheduled to follow and about 20,000 were to go to similar bases in Latvia.

War Business from Europe Still An Unknown Quantity in Market

New York, Oct. 8 (AP)—In the sixth week of the conflict between Germany and the Allies, war business from Europe is still an unknown quantity to Wall Street analysts.

The Hitler peace fever last week seemed to add to uncertainty in the financial district over prospects for large-scale orders for fighting supplies from England and France.

The Allies are estimated to have several billions of dollars in cash or its equivalent available for purchase of foodstuffs and munitions in the United States.

But, as some analysts see it, use of this reserve "war chest" depends on:

(1) Duration of the conflict and more intensive fighting by land and sea than has taken place so far.

(2) Changes in the U. S. neutrality act to permit a freer flow of orders.

(3) Protection for Allied ship-

Holland-Amerika Freighter Sinks; Crew Taken Off

Fire Follows Explosion and Vessel Goes Down Quickly

London, Oct. 8 (AP)—The Holland-Amerika freighter Binnendijk which sailed from New York for Amsterdam Sept. 26, sank in flames in the English channel early today after an explosion.

The crew of forty-one was rescued by a British examination ship which answered rocket signals sent up by the 6,873-ton vessel as she went down near Weymouth, British coastguard control port.

Capt. W. Moree of Rotterdam said he was on the bridge when a "terrible explosion" put the engines and wireless out of commission. He said he was unable to determine immediately whether the ship was sunk by a mine or torpedo. Authorities said there were no British mines in that area.

(The Holland-Amerika line announced in Rotterdam it had been informed by the Binnendijk's captain that his vessel struck a mine.)

"The ship began to sink very slowly," Captain Moree said, "we fired rocket signals which were answered. Later an examination vessel came alongside and, making fast to our ship, took us all off. The forty-one officers and crew. We had no passengers."

He said the passage from New York had been uneventful and "we saw nothing near the English coast" for an inspection of the ship's general cargo.

The explosion occurred as most of the men were asleep in their bunks, one member of the crew said. The freighter went down soon after the last man was taken off, he added.

Two members of the crew suffered leg fractures.

The sinking of the Binnendijk was the first reported since the 876-ton British freighter Glen Farg, which the British admiralty said Friday had been sunk by a submarine. The Glen Farg's crew was saved, but one seaman died later.

Sights Submarine Off Maine Coast

Portland, Me., Oct. 8 (AP)—Arthur Greenleaf, Maine commissioner of sea and shore fisheries, reported that he had "positively" sighted a partially submerged submarine early today five miles south-east of Portland lights.

Officials at the navy yard at Kittery said there were no American submarines in that vicinity.

Greenleaf, making a routine patrol of coastal waters, said he plainly saw the grey outlines of a sub at 2:40 a. m. (EST) from a motor boat and that the vessel, which he estimated was 150 feet long, came within 50 yards of his craft, half circled it, then headed out to sea.

Two sea and shore fisheries wardens, Fred Duplissy and Luther Greenleaf, who were with him, confirmed the report.

Military dispatches, however, declared French patrols were at work, particularly in the Hornbach salient south of Zweibrücken, pushing the raids deeper into German territory.

Big Guns in Action

On the Northern end of the German-French front big guns of both sides kept up a staccato fire in the Moselle valley near Luxembourg.

The French air force was reported to have executed scouting flights over the important Western German cities of Cologne and Bonn which are on the Rhine opposite the Belgian and Netherlands frontier. Both cities are behind Aachen where the French have reported detecting German troop concentrations.

One French scout plane failed to return to its base. It was announced, but the rest of the squadrons were said to have made their flights safely.

No Major Offensive

Though activity increased on the Western front, there still was no sign of a major offensive.

Military observers said this fit into a general plan of harassing Germany on land and blockading her at sea until her forces should take the initiative during adverse winter weather or the French-British forces complete their armaments for a spring offensive.

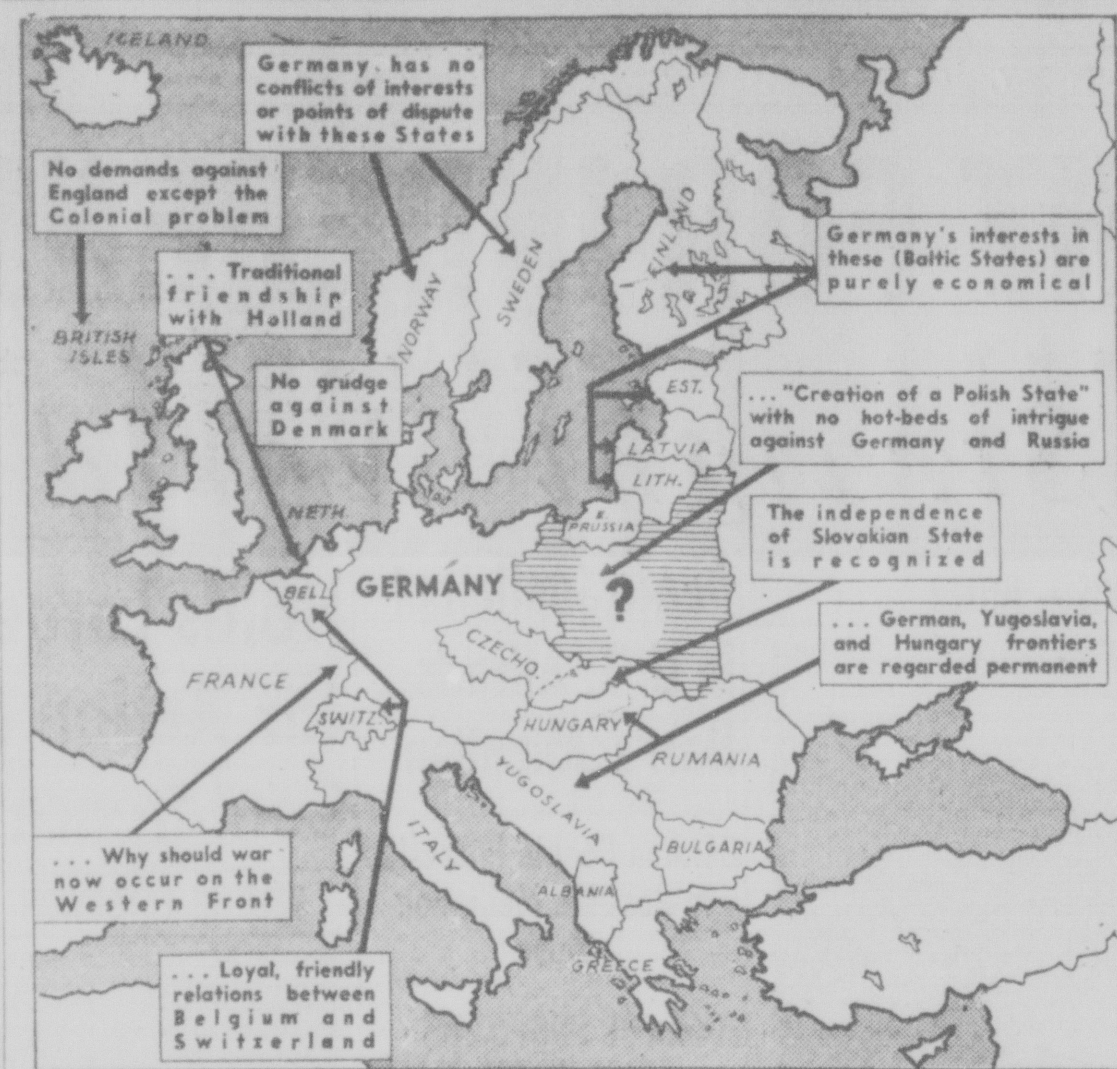

Political sources said Premier Daladier had no plans at present for replying directly to Hitler's speech since no formal peace proposal had been received either from Germany or through a neutral power.

The premier told the foreign affairs committee of the senate and chamber of deputies last week that his government was determined to fight for "victory" and "lasting peace."

French looked to Prime Minister Chamberlain's address in the House of Commons Wednesday as the next allied move.

Headquarters of the French war council announced that twenty-six of seventy-two former Communist deputies had been arrested for violation of the decree dissolving the Communist party and forbidding Communist propaganda.

Mobilization Order Puts U. S. on Way to Becoming Military Power

By EDWARD E. BOMAR

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

The orders mobilizing seven divisions of regular army troops for winter training conveyed notice to warring Europe and Asia that the United States is on the way to becoming a military power on land as well as at sea and in the air.

For the first time since the World War A. E. F. was disbanded, the war department expects soon to be able to put a sizeable combat force into the field on short notice.

Under plans disclosed Saturday by Secretary Woodring, the army a few months hence will have a force of more than 115,000 trained and fully equipped professional troops, organized into "streamlined" divisions and combat corps.

Ready for "Front"

They can be dispatched on short notice to reinforce what military men refer to as American "forward positions," such as the Panama Canal, Puerto Rico, Hawaii, Alaska and the Philippines.

Should the nation be drawn into war, the nucleus of another American expeditionary force would be ready for instant action—in contrast with the months of delay in 1917—while the national guard was being mobilized and the country put on a war footing.

It is no secret among military men that the American army since the World War was far stronger on paper than it would be in the field in a sudden emergency.

The Pacific outpost of Hawaii is garrisoned by a capable force of some 25,000 and the Panama Canal defenders have been reinforced already to more than 18,000. But in the continental United States, it was noted recently by General Malin Craig, retiring as chief of staff, the army does not have a single complete division.

Roosevelt Paves Way

The way for the largest concentration of regular army troops since the World War was cleared by President Roosevelt's decision that deficits for housing and other expenses could be incurred and passed on later to Congress for approval.

An executive order last month directed the recruiting of 17,000 additional regulars "as rapidly as possible" and the addition of 45,000 men to the national guard.

The initial 17,000 permits the organization of small, compact divisions of about 9,000 officers and men each, with which the army had been experimenting for the last two years.

Far more mobile and more deadly in fire power than the World War divisions of from 22,000 to 27,000, they are patterned somewhat after such European units.

The next step is to train the division as a corps, which is made up of two or more divisions. Two or more corps comprise a field army, of which the A. E. F. had two.

Seek More Regulars

The next move, it is indicated clearly, will be to ask Congress for 53,000 more regulars, by expanding the army to its full peacetime limit of 280,000. With these four more infantry divisions and special auxiliary units such as heavy artillery, supply and signal corps troops, will be organized and welded into a second corps.

By comparison with the millions under arms in Europe, the numbers appear small.

But for the first time in peace, an objective long sought by military leaders appears in sight. This is a military establishment whose key is a highly capable and instantly ready professional army, supported by the national guard and with some 100,000 reserve officers available to train mass reserves.

State To Tighten Fire Regulations

Volunteer Firemen Praised in Talks

Baltimore, Oct. 8 (AP)—State Insurance Commissioner John B. Gontum and Rep. Lansdale G. Sasser led Maryland volunteer firemen today in observing the opening of national fire prevention week.

Both Gontum and Sasser, in addresses here and at College Park, respectively, emphasized the annual toll of fire losses and urged citizens to take all possible precautions to prevent them.

Maryland heretofore has been regarded as a "backward" state in fire prevention and education. Gontum said, and "I found when I took office that there was urgent need for rigid inspection of all public buildings."

As a result, the insurance department expects to promulgate certain rules and regulations, which will have the force of law, governing fire hazards and safety standards, he continued.

In addition to rigid inspection work, the department will concentrate on educational work in schools and vigorous prosecution of arson cases, Gontum said.

He praised volunteer firemen for their assistance to the department and for the rendering of a "great public service," without other reward than satisfaction in its accomplishment.

Sasser noted that comprehensive fire prevention campaigns have been successful in materially reducing fire losses elsewhere. Maryland volunteer firemen have reached a high peak of efficiency, he added, but need cooperation from citizens in "preventing fire so we won't have to fight it."

New York Giants Beats Pirates 14-7

Pittsburgh, Oct. 8 (AP)—New York's world champion professional football Giants maintained their record of never losing a game in Forbes Field here today by defeating the Pittsburgh Pirates 14 to 7, but the Pirates were on the edge of touchdown land when the pistol ended the contest.

Excited fans from a slim crowd of 9,663, smallest of the season, poured onto the field as, with but four seconds remaining, a Pirate pass was batted down on the Giants' goal line by Johnny Karo's. Hoping to tie the score, the Pirates hurriedly lined up for another play but Field Judge Carl Rebele picked up the ball with one hand and yanked out a pistol and fired the signal ending the game with the other.

$200,000 Yacht Sinks in Hudson

Fokker's Palatial Ship Is Believed Total Loss

Yonkers, N. Y., Oct. 8 (AP)—A bride and groom of six hours, honeymooning to Niagara Falls on airplane designer Anthony Fokker's palatial "yacht of tomorrow," the Q.E.D., narrowly escaped death last night when the craft burned and sank in the Hudson river off Yonkers, forcing them and the crew of nine to jump overboard.

Although suffering minor burns, all were rescued by other boats, with the exception of one crew member, John Wanamaker, 42, of Yonkers, who was still missing today.

The honeymoon couple were Richard G. Vance, Westfield, N. J., florist, and the former Paula Borchart. They were married in Manhattan at 6 p. m., and after a wedding dinner boarded the yacht—loaned to them by Fokker—planning to anchor overnight near Nyack.

When they got off Yonkers, about 20 miles up the river, Captain Lawrence Gamage noticed smoke pouring out of the after portholes. After the crew was unable to put out the fire, he gave the order to abandon ship.

The $200,000 110-foot yacht sank several hundred feet off shore, only her bow showing, apparently a total loss.

The victims floated in life preservers until rescue boats took them ashore. The honeymoon couple returned to New York City in an automobile.

The Q.E.D. was Fokker's experiment in applying airplane design principles to shipbuilding. She was streamlined and of the lightest possible construction, with a special superstructure that enabled the helmsman to see in a complete circle; and disappearing davits and hatch covers. The Q.E.D. had triple screws, with one 800-horsepower and two 600-horsepower engines.

Washington Redskins Defeat Brooklyn

Washington, Oct. 8 (AP)—The Washington Redskins piled up their biggest score in three years today in a 41 to 13 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers and held a first place tie with the New York Giants in the National Professional Football League.

Sammy Baugh, the Redskins' passing star, was out because of injuries. Andy Farkas and Dick Todd, a freshman on the squad, carried the brunt of the running attack.

Ace Parker scored one of the Brooklyn touchdowns and passed to Stan Kessel for the other.

CIO Leaders Doubt FDR Will Be Able To End Labor War

See No Prospects of Early Peace Between Rival Unions

San Francisco, Oct. 8 (AP)—Leaders of the CIO, assembling for their national convention, indicated today they held little hope that any new appeal from President Roosevelt for peace between the two great factions of American labor would bear fruit in the near future.

Some of them expressed the belief that their organization would press with renewed vigor its aim to "organize the unorganized," taking advantage of any increase in employment that might result from a war-born demand for American goods and services.

Three of President John L. Lewis's key men spoke skeptically of CIO-AFL peace prospects in addressing the state CIO convention, a forerunner of the national gathering.

What prompted their remarks presumably were reports that the national convention might receive a peace appeal from President Roosevelt similar to the one the chief executive sent to the AFL convention in Cincinnati.

"We cannot unite on the terms the AFL leaders propose," said John Brophy, CIO national director, "because they involve the destruction of the CIO. We cannot revert to the system of internal bickering in the AFL which kept the American labor movement helpless and ineffective for so long."

Harry Bridges, West Coast CIO director and object of a labor department deportation effort, received an ovation from the state convention.

"All the AFL top leadership wants," he said, "is peace based on the desires of a small clique of officials. We want a peace that will protect the CIO and the rank and file of the AFL."

CIO Vice President Philip Murray asserted the AFL had refused for twenty-five years to change its attitude toward industrial unionism.

ed her expansion campaign in the Baltic.

Reliable reports tonight said Finland was seeking diplomatic aid of Sweden and Germany to forestall what she feared might be "excessive" demands from Soviet Russia.

(In Helsinki, however, the Finnish prime minister said Finland was "calm" and without "the slightest nervousness" over negotiations with the Soviet Union.)

The Finns yesterday accepted a Russian invitation for conversations in Moscow similar to those which have resulted in two Baltic states, Estonia and Latvia, granting broad military and economic concessions to Russia.

Estonia Pact Ratified

Finland named her minister to Sweden, Juhani Kusti Paasikivi, head of a delegation for the Moscow talks. He was expected to arrive soon.

The president of the Supreme Soviet, Russia's parliament, meanwhile ratified the Estonian-Soviet mutual assistance pact which was concluded Oct. 5.

A German trade delegation arrived seeking raw materials under terms of the Soviet-German trade agreement. Foreign observers were dubious of what aid Russian might be able to give the Germans except in wheat and timber.

The foreign ministers of Turkey and Lithuania were in Moscow on important missions.

It was expected an agreement would be reached quickly with the Lithuanian Foreign Minister, Juozas Urbys, probably giving Russia military and naval concessions and rights of transit such as Estonia and Latvia yielded.

Thus Lithuania, which borders Germany, would become a virtual Russian protectorate, as have the other small Baltic nations through treaties hastily negotiated while Germany was locked in war with Britain and France.

May Prove Tough Customer

Informed Moscow sources predicted Finland would not resist any "reasonable" Soviet demands but that she might prove a tougher customer than the little Baltic states if the price asked was high.

(Finnish dispatches indicated Finns were represented as determined to preserve their national independence at all costs.)

In Moscow belief was expressed that the Russians primarily wanted the Finnish-owned islands of Lantvaansari and Seiskar, in the Gulf of Finland, which are unfortified but could control the approaches of Leningrad.

Russian has troops stationed along the Finnish frontier, but their strength was not known.

Economic issues between Finland and Russia already have been under discussion through normal diplomatic channels and the two nations already have a non-aggression pact.

Supreme Court To Rule on National Labor Board Cases

May Decide To Review Ap- peal of A.F.L. against C.I.O.

Washington, Oct. 8 (AP)—The Supreme Court is expected to announce tomorrow whether it will review seven controversies involving interpretation of the National Labor Relations Act.

Disputes between the American Federation of Labor and the CIO produced three of the cases.

Approximately 300 petitions will be acted on tomorrow at the first business session of the new term that began last Monday. These were filed during the summer recess that began June 5.

If the tribunal refuses a review, the decision of the lower court remains in effect. If a review is granted, there will be oral arguments followed by a final decision.

Litigation growing out of the Federation-CIO conflicts, involves:

1. An appeal by the federation from a ruling by the United States Court of Appeals which left in effect a labor board order certifying a CIO union as the exclusive bargaining agency for all Pacific coast longshoremen. The court of appeals held it did not have jurisdiction to pass on the certification.

2. The labor board's effort to place the name of only one labor organization (a CIO affiliate) on the ballot for a run-off election to determine collective bargaining representation for employees of the Consumers Power Company at Jackson, Michigan. The Federation contended its affiliate also should be on the ballot. The Sixth Federal Circuit Court set aside the labor board order.

3. A Labor Board order directing the Waterman Steamship Corporation of Mobile, Ala., to reinstate a group of employees with back pay. They were dismissed after changing their membership from a federation to a CIO affiliate. The Fifth Federal Circuit Court set aside the order, ruling that the dismissals were for economy.

Four other labor cases involve board orders against the Cudahy Packing Company of St. Paul, the Louisville Refining Company, the National Lingerie Company of Brooklyn and the Crowe Coal Company of Henry County, Mo. The orders were sustained in lower courts.

Action on anti-trust cases brought by the department of justice against the American Medical Association, twelve mid-west oil companies, and a group of milk companies in the Chicago area will be taken a week from tomorrow or later. The government was unsuccessful in lower courts.

Details of the reported North Sea "triumph" were lacking.

Father Coughlin Continues Radio Plea for Embargo

Detroit, Oct. 8 (AP)—Five days after the National Association of Broadcasters imposed restrictions on "spokesmen of controversial issues" the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin today continued his radio speeches in defense of the arms embargo, declaring repeal would be a blow to "representative government."

Without mentioning last Tuesday's ruling of the Association's Code Committee, which allowed, however, for fulfillment of existing contracts, Father Coughlin charged that repeal of the embargo would constitute a failure of Congress to heed demands of "millions of Americans."

The Royal Oak (Mich.) priest, who radio associates say still has contracts to complete with a network of stations, referred to letters sent to Congressmen asking the embargo's retention.

"In this hour of crisis," Father Coughlin said, "millions of plain Americans have voiced their sentiments to their representatives at Washington. After all, this is a representative government. These gentlemen whom we have elected to office cannot represent the people unless they know what the people want, x x x

"Carry on this week even more vigorously than in the past two weeks. If your representatives and senators do not heed them, then representatives government already has decayed and an oligarchical dictatorship already has appeared."

The code committee of the N. A. B., which claims to represent ninety-two per cent of commercial radio, ruled against purchase of radio time for discussion of "controversial issues" except under certain conditions, such as the public forum type of program. Father Coughlin spoke today over his customary chain of 48 stations.

Peace Sentiment

Hitler's Friday Reichstag speech but today was the most peaceful Sunday since the war against Poland started Sept. 1.

Government ministries were deserted as officials took their first days of rest in five weeks.

Hitler was in Berlin but there was no sign of activity around his palace. Even customary press conferences in government departments failed to occur.

For two days the German press has been filled with reports from world capitals describing "the deep and favorable impression" made by Hitler's speech.

Expect Early Peace

Millions of Germans, therefore, seem convinced that peace is just around the corner.

There was nothing in today's army communiqué to give them an impression that major activity was planned on the Western front. The brief announcement said only that "there was artillery activity by both sides by day and occasional instances of harassing fire by night."

(The opinion was expressed in Paris that the French-British allies were waiting for Germany to take the initiative or were delaying until they had completed arming for a spring offensive of their own.)

The German communiqué reported that in conquering Poland two division commanders, 1,555 officers and 15,600 non-commissioned officers and men surrendered to German troops at Kock.

German and Soviet Russian troops, who collaborated in partitioning Poland, were reported to be taking their positions along the new frontier "according to plan."

Charleston, W. Va., Oct. 8 (AP)—Lemuel F. Robertson, 37-year-old carpenter, died today of injuries suffered ten days ago when he was struck by a truck on Tyler Mountain.

Always Felt Yankees Could Beat Russians

Sioux City, Ia., Oct. 8 (AP)—Keeping up with the war and the World Series was a little too much for at least one Sioux City woman. With newboys shouting, "Yankees Beat Reds," a newspaper reporter wrote he overheard a woman shopper remark to another in all seriousness:

"I always knew the Yankees could beat those Russians."

State To Tighten Fire Regulations

Volunteer Firemen Praised in Talks

Baltimore, Oct. 8 (AP)—State Insurance Commissioner John B. Gontum and Rep. Lansdale G. Sasser led Maryland volunteer firemen today in observing the opening of national fire prevention week.

Both Gontum and Sasser, in addresses here and at College Park, respectively, emphasized the annual toll of fire losses and urged citizens to take all possible precautions to prevent them.

Maryland heretofore has been regarded as a "backward" state in fire prevention and education, Gontum said, and "I found when I took office that there was urgent need . . . for rigid inspection of all public buildings."

As a result, the insurance department expects to promulgate certain rules and regulations, which will have the force of law, governing fire hazards and safety standards, he continued.

In addition to rigid inspection work, the department will concentrate on educational work in schools and vigorous prosecution of arson cases, Gontum said.

He praised volunteer firemen for their assistance to the department and for the rendering of a "great public service," without other reward than satisfaction in its accomplishment.

Sasser noted that comprehensive fire prevention campaigns have been successful in materially reducing fire losses elsewhere. Maryland volunteer firemen have reached a high peak of efficiency, he added, but need cooperation from citizens in "preventing fire so we won't have to fight it."

New York Giants Beats Pirates 14-7

Pittsburgh, Oct. 8 (AP)—New York's world champion professional football Giants maintained their record of never losing a game in Forbes Field here today by defeating the Pittsburgh Pirates 14 to 7, but the Pirates were on the edge of touchdown when the pistol ended the contest.

Excited fans from a slim crowd of 9,663, smallest of the season, poured out the field as, with but four seconds remaining, a Pirate pass was batted down on the Giants' goal line by Johnny Karcs. Hoping to tie the score, the Pirates hurriedly lined up for another play but Field Judge Carl Rebele picked up the ball with one hand and yanked out a pistol and fired the signal ending the game with the other.

$200,000 Yacht Sinks in Hudson

Fokker's Palatial Ship Is Believed Total Loss

Yonkers, N. Y., Oct. 8 (AP)—A bride and groom of six hours, honeymooning to Niagara Falls on airplane designer Anthony Fokker's palatial "yacht of tomorrow," the Q.E.D., narrowly escaped death last night when the craft burned and sank in the Hudson river off Yonkers, forcing them and the crew of nine to jump overboard.

Although suffering minor burns, all were rescued by other boats, with the exception of one crew member, John Wanamaker, 42, of Yonkers, who was still missing today.

The honeymoon couple were Richard G. Vance, Westfield, N. J., florist, and the former Paula Borchard. They were married in Manhattan at 6 p. m., and after a wedding dinner aboard the yacht—loaned to them by Fokker—planning to anchor overnight near Nyack.

When they got off Yonkers, about 30 miles up the river, Captain Lawrence Gamage noticed smoke pouring out of the after portholes. After the crew was unable to put out the fire, he gave the order to abandon ship.

The $200,000 110-foot yacht sank several hundred feet off shore, only her bow showing, apparently a total loss.

The victims floated in life preservers until rescue boats took them ashore. The honeymoon couple returned to New York City in an automobile.

The Q.E.D. was Fokker's experiment in applying airplane design principles to shipbuilding. She was streamlined and of the lightest possible construction, with a special superstructure that enabled the helmsman to see in a complete circle; and disappearing davits and hatch covers. The Q.E.D. had triple screws, with one 800-horsepower and two 600-horsepower engines.

Washington Redskins Defeat Brooklyn

Washington, Oct. 8 (AP)—The Washington Redskins piled up their biggest score in three years today in a 41 to 13 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers and held a first place tie with the New York Giants in the National Professional Football League.

Sammy Baugh, the Redskins' passing star, was out because of injuries. Andy Parkas and Dick Todd, a freshman on the squad, carried the brunt of the running attack.

Ace Parker scored one of the Brooklyn touchdowns and passed to Stan Kosel for the other.

See No Prospects of Early Peace Between Rival Unions

San Francisco, Oct. 8 (AP)—Leaders of the CIO, assembling for their national convention, indicated today they held little hope that any new appeal from President Roosevelt for peace between the two great factions of American labor would bear fruit in the near future.

Some of them expressed the belief that their organization would press with renewed vigor its aim to "organize the unorganized," taking advantage of any increase in employment that might result from a war-born demand for American goods and services.

Three of President John L. Lewis's key men spoke skeptically of CIO-AFL peace prospects in addressing the state CIO convention, a forerunner of the national gathering.

What prompted their remarks, presumably were reports that the national convention might receive a peace appeal from President Roosevelt similar to the one the chief executive sent to the AFL convention in Cincinnati.

"We cannot unite on the terms the AFL leaders propose," said John Brophy, CIO national director, "because they involve the destruction of the CIO. We cannot revert to the system of internal bickering in the AFL which kept the American labor movement helpless and ineffective for so long."

Harry Bridges, West Coast CIO director and object of a labor department deportation effort, received an ovation from the state convention.

"All the AWL top leadership wants," he said, "is peace based on the desires of a small clique of officials. xxx We want a peace that will protect the CIO and the rank and file of the AFL."

CIO Vice President Philip Murray asserted the AFL had refused for twenty-five years to change its attitude toward industrial unionism.

ed her expansion campaign in the Baltic.

Reliable reports tonight said Finland was seeking diplomatic aid of Sweden and Germany to forestall what she feared might be "excessive" demands from Soviet Russia.

(In Helsinki, however, the Finnish prime minister said Finland was "calm" and without "the slightest nervousness" over negotiations with the Soviet Union.)

The Finns yesterday accepted a Russian invitation for conversations in Moscow similar to those which have resulted in two Baltic nations, Estonia and Latvia, granting broad military and economic concessions to Russia.

Estonia Pact Ratified

Finland named her minister to Sweden, Juhuri Kusti Paasikivi, head of a delegation for the Moscow talks. He was expected to arrive soon.

The presidium of the Supreme Soviet, Russia's parliament, meanwhile ratified the Estonian-Soviet mutual assistance pact which was concluded Oct. 5.

A German trade delegation arrived seeking raw materials under terms of the Soviet-German trade agreement. Foreign observers were dubious of what aid Russian might be able to give the Germans except in wheat and timber.

The foreign ministers of Turkey and Lithuania were in Moscow on important missions.

It was expected an agreement would be reached quickly with the Lithuanian Foreign Minister, Juozas Urbys, probably giving Russia military and naval concessions and rights of transit such as Estonia and Latvia yielded.

Thus Lithuania, which borders Germany, would become a virtual Russian protectorate, as have the other small Baltic nations through treaties hastily negotiated while Germany was locked in war with Britain and France.

May Prove Tough Customer

Informed Moscow sources predicted Finland would not resist any "reasonable" Soviet demands but that she might prove a tougher customer than the little Baltic states if the price asked was high.

(Finnish dispatches indicated Finns were represented as determined to preserve their national independence at all costs.)

In Moscow belief was expressed that the Russians primarily want the Finnish-owned islands of Långsär and Seiskar, in the Gulf of Finland, which are unfortified but could control the approaches of Leningrad.

Russian has troops stationed along the Finnish frontier, but their strength was not known.

Economic issues between Finland and Russian already have been under discussion through normal diplomatic channels and the two nations already have a non-aggression pact.

Supreme Court To Rule on National Labor Board Cases

May Decide To Review Ap- peal of A.F.L. against C.I.O.

Washington, Oct. 8 (AP)—The Supreme Court is expected to announce tomorrow whether it will review seven controversies involving interpretation of the National Labor Relations Act.

Disputes between the American Federation of Labor and the CIO produced three of the cases.

Approximately 300 petitions will be acted on tomorrow at the first business session of the new term that began last Monday. These were filed during the summer recess that began June 5.

If the tribunal refuses a review, the decision of the lower court remains in effect. If a review is granted, there will be oral arguments followed by a final decision.

Litigation growing out of the Federation-CIO conflicts, involves:

1. An appeal by the federation from a ruling by the United States Court of Appeals which left in effect a labor board order certifying a CIO union as the exclusive bargaining agency for all Pacific coast longshoremen. The court of appeals held it did not have jurisdiction to pass on the certification.

2. The labor board's effort to place the name of only one labor organization (a CIO affiliate) on the ballot for a run-off election to determine collective bargaining representation for employees of the Consumers Power Company at Jackson, Michigan. The Federation contended its affiliate also should be on the ballot. The Sixth Federal Circuit Court set aside the labor board order.

3. A Labor Board order directing the Waterman Steamship Corporation of Mobile, Ala., to reinstate a group of employees with back pay. They were dismissed after changing their membership from a federation to a CIO affiliate. The Fifth Federal Circuit Court set aside the order, ruling that the dismissals were for economy.

Four other labor cases involve board orders against the Cudahy Packing Company of St. Paul, the Louisville Refining Company, the National Licorice Company of Brooklyn and the Crowe Coal Company of Henry County, Mo. The orders were sustained in lower courts.

Action on anti-trust cases brought by the department of justice against the American Medical Association, twelve mid-west oil companies, and a group of milk companies in the Chicago area will be taken a week from tomorrow or later. The government was unsuccessful in lower courts.

"Peace at Price"

"real justice and lasting peace" are achieved.

In a statement made public today, deputy labor leader Arthur Greenwood asserted Britain "would gladly listen to any constructive and sincere proposal for peace but the truth is that Hitler has offered nothing seriously."

"Peace Is Off"
The Daily Express today declared that "peace is off, war is on. x x x The men are waiting eager and ready."

The British press also gave considerable attention to a two-day visit by King George to the home fleet.

Besides visiting the fleet the king went to a fleet airdrome where he decorated airmen reported to have "recently achieved a certain Northern sea triumph."

Details of the reported North Sea "triumph" were lacking.

Air minister Sir Kingsley Wood and Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer, inspected a big royal air force airdrome "somewhere in England."

August Zaleski, foreign minister in the newly organized Polish government in exile in France, is expected here from Paris Wednesday on an official visit.

The Midland Red Sox swept both ends of their twin-bill with Frostburg in their Bi-State League play-off at Midland before about 1,000 fans yesterday, 10 to 1 and 10 to 2.

Lambert and E. Drew formed the Frostburg battery in the first game with Roguish hurling and Porta catching for Midland.

In the second game McNichols continued where Roguish left off in throttling the Mountain City crew with Porta again behind the plate. Lowery started on the mound for Frostburg in the second game, but was hoisted for Crane in the eighth.

E. Drew again was on the receiving end.

NEUTRAL OBSERVER DISCUSSES THE WAR

By Associated Press

Here's how the war situation seemed yesterday:

Paris—French soldiers stopped playing cards on the Siegfried line and launching some "local" attacks. Nobody got hurt.

London—Britishers are all excited over what Chamberlain will say to Hitler today in reply to the fuhrer's peace plea. Not much indication Chamberlain will do any about face or get out on a limb.

Washington—New Dealers agitating for Roosevelt entrance into the war as peacemaker. Wilson slogan "He Kept Us Out of War" is recalled.

Stockholm—News from Finland has it that the Finns will fight all Russian attempts to seize control of the nation. Finns are only ones who are up to date in their war debt payments to the U. S. A.

Cincinnati—Reds feel like the Poles of Warsaw. They made a good stand but heavy artillery put the Indian sign on 'em.

Father Coughlin Continues Radio Plea for Embargo

Detroit, Oct. 8 (AP)—Five days after the National Association of Broadcasters imposed restrictions on "spokesmen of controversial issues" the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin today continued his radio speeches in defense of the arms embargo, declaring repeal would be a blow to "representative government."

Without mentioning last Tuesday's ruling of the Association's Code Committee, which allowed, however, for fulfillment of existing contracts, Father Coughlin charged that repeal of the embargo would constitute a failure of Congress to heed demands of "millions of Americans."

The Royal Oak (Mich.) priest, who radio associates say still has contracts to complete with a network of stations, referred to letters sent to Congressmen asking the embargo's retention.

"In this hour of crisis," Father Coughlin said, "millions of plain Americans have voiced their sentiments to their representatives at Washington. After all, this is a representative government. These gentlemen whom we have elected to office cannot represent the people unless they know what the people want, x x x

"Carry on this week even more vigorously than in the past two weeks. If your representatives and senators do not heed them, then representatives government already has decayed and an oligarchical dictatorship already has appeared."

The code committee of the N. A. B., which claims to represent ninety-two per cent of commercial radio, ruled against purchase of radio time for discussion of "controversial issues" except under certain conditions such as the public forum type of program. Father Coughlin spoke today over his customary chain of 48 stations.

Peace Sentiment

Hitler's Friday Reichstag speech, but today was the most peaceful Sunday since the war against Poland started Sept. 1.

Government ministries were deserted as officials took their first days of rest in five weeks.

Hitler was in Berlin but there was no sign of activity around his palace. Even customary press conferences in government departments failed to occur.

For two days the German press has been filled with reports from world capitals describing "the deep and favorable impression" made by Hitler's speech.

Expect Early Peace
Millions of Germans, therefore, seem convinced that peace is just around the corner.

There was nothing in today's army communiqué to give them an impression that major activity was planned on the Western front. The brief announcement said only that "there was artillery activity by both sides by day and occasional instances of harassing fire by night."

(The opinion was expressed in Paris that the French-British allies were waiting for Germany to take the initiative or were delaying until they had completed arming for a spring offensive of their own.)

The German communiqué reported that in conquering Poland two division commanders, 1,555 officers and 15,600 non-commissioned officers and men surrendered to German troops at Kock.

German and Soviet Russian troops, who collaborated in partitioning Poland, were reported to be taking their positions along the new frontier "according to plan."

Green Bay Packers Defeat Cardinals 27-20

Milwaukee, Oct. 8 (AP)—The Green Bay Packers fought off a great Chicago Cardinal fourth period rally to win a national football league game here today, 27 to 20, before a crowd of 20,000.

For the first two periods and part of the third the Packers dominated play, but late in the third quarter the Cardinals found a Packers weakness—pass defense. From that point on the Chicagoans went to town passing for three touchdowns and getting beyond the bay 10 on two other occasions.

Press of Italy Urges Allies To Terminate War

Fascist Editors Express Ap- proval of Hitler's Terms

Rome, Oct. 8 (AP)—The Fascist press urged Britain and France today to accept Adolf Hitler's peace offer.

Virginio Gayda, authoritative Fascist journalist, writing in the Voce D'Italia said Italy "once calls the people to face realities and dangers in the hope they may draw back in time from a fateful precipitation."

"Peace which might be reached after a bloody war on the western front," Gayda continued, "could be much different from that which Germany proposes today."

"At the end of the war, with millions dead and an incalculable destruction of riches, what would be recovered by the world would be only that which Hitler's speech already put forward as natural conditions of a true European peace," he wrote.

The newspaper Il Popolo Di Roma complained that Hitler's proposals had not been given the reception it said they deserved in London and Paris.

Moreover, Il Messaggero commented: "Everything justifies the conclusion that France and Britain's unanimity in considering Hitler's proposals unacceptable is more formal than substantial."

Il Messaggero expressed the belief British opposition was based on unwillingness to accept guarantees of the Hitler regime, while France was concerned more with German claims for "vital space."

Hitler's arguments, the newspaper said, were "impeccably logical because they are founded on reality."

Teething Age Is Not Dangerous, Doctor States

Chief Thing Is To See That Nutrition Is Proper

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Mothers have instilled in their minds the idea that there is a so-called teething age for babies. This goes with a belief that the erupting of teeth is the cause of many baby ailments.

Fifty years or more ago the doctors turned over the care of the baby from the time it was born to the grandmother or some female in the neighborhood who had a reputation for being good with babies.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through this column.

There excellent ladies were efficacious but not very scientific, and the teething age idea was one of their most cherished beliefs.

The interest in children from the medical standpoint is of quite recent development. The first book on diseases of children which had any scientific standing was published during the present century. Interest in children and all their problems has grown rapidly over since.

Know More Now

We know, in consequence of this knowledge, far more about the teething age than we used to. We know that it is not dangerous, and that it causes the child little discomfort. The important thing is to see that the child's nutrition is cared for during the erupting of teeth.

A digestive upset, such as vomiting or diarrhea, and other things, such as fever and convulsions, when they happen to occur during the teething age, are ascribed to this phenomenon of the erupting of teeth.

Do not then sooth yourself with the idea that during the teething age everything that the baby may have the matter with it is due to teething entirely. The baby that has a fever during the period of erupting of teeth may be having measles or diphtheria. So have a careful and thorough examination made of the baby who is sick during the teething age, just the same as at any other time.

The teeth begin to erupt between the fifth and seventh months; at the age of two-and-a-half the first set should have all appeared. The corresponding teeth of the two sides of the jaw erupt at the same time. Two two center teeth in the lower jaw appear at the age of six or seven months; the two upper teeth about the fifth to eighth month, and the lateral teeth from the seventh to the tenth month.

This order, however, is not invariably followed, for teeth may prematurely erupt so that they are even seen at birth. But cases of retarded eruption are much more common than those of premature eruption due to weakness, debility or disease.

During the eruption of the teeth the entire face and head change. There is a gradual elongation and prolongation of the teeth, and a consequent adjustment of the bony structures which hold them.

Questions and Answers

R. E. P.: "Please tell me the best treatment for nasal catarrh. As I do quite a bit of singing, this condition becomes quite annoying at times and prevents me from getting the proper resonance for my voice."

Answer—Nasal catarrh is an old-fashioned term and has no real meaning. Catarrh is the desquamation of the superficial cells of a mucous membrane. In the case of the nose this would mean a secretion and a discharge. It has been found by wide and long-continued clinical observation that such conditions are due not to chronic catarrhal inflammation of the inside of the nose, but to sinus infection or turbinate infection, or to a number of factors.

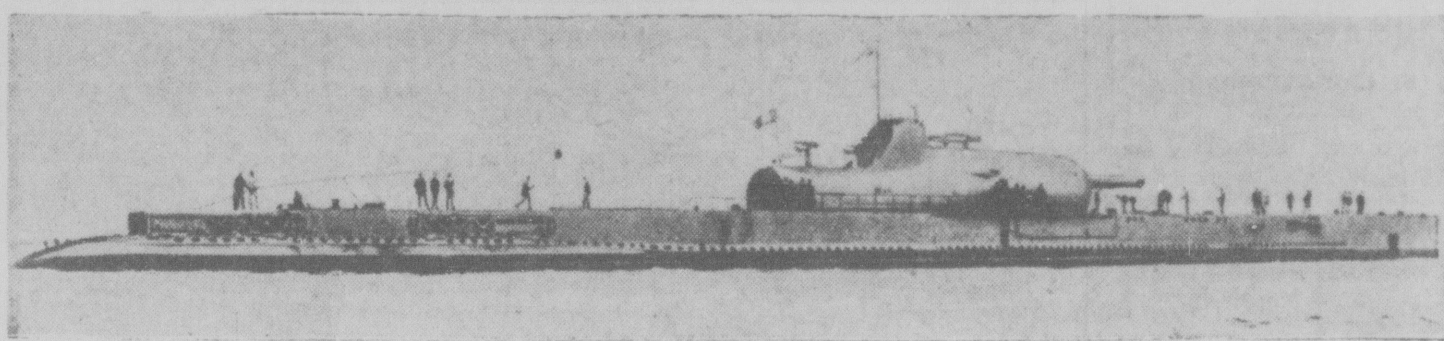

Excessive smoking undoubtedly aggravates nasal infections once they are established. Occupation that involves very dusty or dry air, and surroundings is another. In discussing the treatment in his work on "Diseases of the Nose, Throat and Ear" Dr. Wallace Morrison says: "The underlying causes must be discovered and remedied if possible. This may require a complete study of the body. The local treatment, which can be carried out by the patient, consists in washing out the secretion by sniffing warm saline solution into the nose." Polyps must be removed, the deviated septum must be straightened and sinuses drained.

Nation Counts on a "Slide-Rule Army" That Will Fit Any Crisis, Big or Small

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
AP Feature Service Writer

Washington—While wars roar in Europe, and Congress seethes with the neutrality debate, the United States is calmly building the world's only slide-rule army.

Compressed into its present peacetime minimum, it boasts fewer than 200,000 highly trained officers and men—a smaller defensive force than guards such secondary powers as Argentina, Portugal, Switzerland or Sweden.

Extended under the energy of the PMP, it could be transformed, within six months, into a force of 1,000,000 men. Nothing to compare with the gigantic armies of Europe, but enough, in the eyes of the general staff, for the secondary defense of the nation, assuming that the navy would intercept an enemy far from our shores.

Any Required Number

If and when the enemy should break through, it is calculated we could have any number of men equipped to meet the situation, depending on the emergency and on the desires of the American people.

That compares rather modestly with the army of 4,000,000 we produced in the World War, but it fits more smoothly into our productive capacity.

That's the general base for M-day in America, a day nobody wants, but a day every nation must, in troubled times, be prepared to face.

What is the PMP?

It is the Protective Mobilization Plan, evolved by the Army General Staff in 1937 under War Secretary Harry Woodring, and now a full series on blueprints for emergency action.

Under the limited emergency recently proclaimed by President Roosevelt, PMP is, in effect, already being called for action. The regular army strength is being boosted slowly beyond the 200,000-mark. When "a sufficient emergency exists," the President may increase the regular army to 280,000. By the end of next June, the strength is expected to be 210,000, and an addition of 17,000 men is provided for after that.

Next The IPP

If further emergency should arise, the next step would be creation of the IPP—the Initial Protective Force. With the regular army as a nucleus, the IPP would total, almost at once, more than 400,000 men, by the addition of the partially trained national guard.

From there on, M-day plans are strictly slide-rule; it's that way because nobody can foresee what kind of an emergency would arise.

If we should face, say, a small-scale invasion of Brazil, there would be no need of an M-day; we have at hand right now the force to meet such a threat.

But if an enemy were about to pounce upon us along the Canadian border, after having subdued the small force in Canada, millions of men would be required double-quick.

That's why the army general staff has developed the slide-rule plans.

An Average Emergency

Here's how the idea would work in the case of an "average" emergency: First, the IPP would be created. Then the War Resources board would be transformed into the War Resources administration, headed by an industrial czar, to get equipment and munitions for a huge army. Present supplies would furnish the IPP.

Average M-day visualizes an army of a million men within six months.

The army goes over the top—in maneuvers.

Various reserves would be called up, such as the 20,000 enlisted men and the reserve officers and ROTC men. Perhaps part of the CCC.

Next comes the SSP—the Selective Service Plan, if needed.

Let Louis Johnson, assistant secretary of war, tell you how that works:

"The first step would be registration of all male citizens between the ages of 21 and 30. This registration would take place on a single day through the election machinery of the states at the usual polling places.

"Each registrant would be furnished with a numbered card, and names and numbers would be published in each local community. After that, a national drawing would decide who should be first and who last.

"It would then be the task of 6,000 local boards in that many communities to decide whether their neighbor should serve his country as a soldier or sailor, or whether he would be more valuable as a munitions worker or a farmer.

Keystone Corn Huskers Are Busy Preparing for State Tournament

By ALLAN CRIST

Harrisburg, Pa., Oct. 8 (AP)—Grangers and other agriculturists, getting as pepped-up about the coming state corn-husking contest as they might about the world series, are polishing off the last details for the county contests that will precede the main event.

One fact that emerges from the preliminaries is that the entrants in the state meet, at the old airport farm near York on October 26, will have to be good to survive the early competition.

Fourteen of Chester county's eight local Granges were represented at a Coatesville meeting to outline plans for the county eliminations at Ingleside Farms and Thorndale, October 18. It will take all day to run off the event. The morning will be devoted to selection of the fifteen contestants who will compete in the finals that afternoon. Fifty-seven officials will be required to run the contest, with a referee, a gleaner, and a truck driver for each competitor.

Has Similar Set-up

Berks county has about the same set-up for its contest near Sinking Spring, Oct. 16, except that only ten high men emerging from the morning round will be matched in the afternoon. Each must bring his own referee and two gleaners. Cash prizes—made up of the spectators' donations—will be awarded in the finals. Church women will operate a hot-lunch stand.

Dauphin county hardly had arranged to hold its meet at Hershey Oct. 17, when eight corn-huskers signed as competitors. If more than fifteen enter, a preliminary contest will be held in the morning.

Out in Greene County, a band concert and an automobile show were "added attractions" for the meet set for Saturday (Oct. 7) near Rice's Landing. The Rice's Landing community club and merchants of nearby, community sponsored the affairs.

Pennsylvania's egg production is going up, the Pennsylvania Federal-State Crop Reporting Service finds.

"Pennsylvania showed a slight increase on September 1 in the number of layers in flocks held by correspondents," it reports. "While about the usual seasonal decline was represented, the rate of egg production for the state was eleven per cent larger than both the 1938 and the ten-year average rate for that date."

Organization Work

The Atlantic Grange presented silver certificates to four members on its sixty-fifth anniversary.

West Caln Grange members, some of whom recalled the days when their group met over the blacksmith's shop burned their twenty-five-year-old mortgage at a special ceremony.

Rain failed to keep sixty Bradford county Guernsey breeders from their annual picnic at Sylvania.

The Juniata County agricultural Extension Association has named Miss Ruth M. Schult, of Upper Darby, as home economics representative.

Brokenstraw Frange held a booster meeting in honor of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Hartley, members for nearly fifty-five years.

The German Hill and Red Brush

4-H Pig-feeding Clubs of Forest county completed their project by exhibiting their porkers at a community roundup.

A juvenile Grange was formed by North Coventry Grange, with Richard Walter as its first president.

Fourteen new "greenhands" were taken into the Chief Logan chapter of the Future Farmers of America. Herb Douthy is the president.

John Hay was elected president of the F. F. A. chapter of Berlin-Brothers Valley high school.

Twenty-one F. F. A. members from Hepburnville vocational school bade a one-day tour of South-Central Pennsylvania farming regions.

The Honey Brook F. F. A. group held a two-day farm products show. The five F. F. A. chapters in Adams county are considering formation of a county association.

Around the Countryside

Adams county apple growers, harvesting a commercial crop of about 1,500,000 bushels and noting loss of foreign customers through the European war, are hopeful that England and France will turn to purchases of dried apples, which can be shipped more efficiently than fresh fruit. Members of the county growers' association adopted a resolution opposing sale of their product to the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation.

The auctioneer resorted to a public address system a one of the Chambersburg livestock sales.

Pennsylvania and West Virginia farmers and law officers teamed-up to kill two sheep dogs blamed for slaying approximately sixty sheep along the border in Greene county.

Indiana county bankers forgot interest and loans long enough to visit five farms, then entertain the farmers at a country club dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Montgomery returned last night from Cleveland, Ohio, where they spent a week.

Miss Jane Vossler returned today from Middletown, N. Y., where she has been visiting. She was accompanied home by Mr. and Mrs. Alan Patchett. Miss Anne Vossler, Wheeling, will accompany them on a motor trip through Virginia.

Mrs. Lena Renton, Garrett, Ind., is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Arthur C. Wells.

New Commandant At West Virginia

Morgantown, W. Va. (AP)—Lieut. Col. William R. Orton, an officer who has served more than twenty-five years in the United States army, has taken over his new assignment as commandant of the Reserve Officers Training Corps and professor of military science and tactics at West Virginia University.

Col. Orton was graduated from West Point in 1914 and was promoted to first lieutenant in 1916 while serving on the Mexican border. He was promoted to captain in 1917 and sent to France with the American Expeditionary Forces where he served one year.

As a major he was stationed at Washington from 1918 to 1920, at Fort George Wright at Spokane, Wash.; the infantry school at Fort Benning, Ga.; the General Staff school at Fort Leavenworth, Kan.; Fort Wadsworth, N. Y., and in the foreign service stationed at Puerto Rico.

Col. Orton came to the university from New Jersey where he has been on tour with the national guard since 1935.

Out of the Luxury Class

Oil heat used to be a luxury, but this season prices are so low that many people who used to think they could not afford it, are turning to this clean, effortless way of heating their homes. The most complete line of oil heaters that we have seen, and the lowest priced, is that offered by Montgomery Ward in their new fall catalog. Every style of circulating oil heater is included. They are so attractive looking that they will be an addition to the appearance of any room. Anyone who is interested in heating equipment that does away with soot, smoke and the necessity of carrying heavy fuel will find it worth their while to investigate this line. Plane Crashes, Two Passengers Unhurt

Charleston W. Va., Oct. 8. (AP)—A light airplane crashed today into a mass of power wires and lodged thirty feet from the ground without injury to two occupants.

Firemen raised a ladder to the ship, equipped with pontoons for river landing, and rescued the flyers after they had been stranded for about half an hour.

J. C. McGuire, 25, of Rainelle, who said he was the pilot, reported the plane stalled in a take-off from the river.

McGuire's companion was J. W. Bailey, 22-year-old grocery clerk.

Teething Age Is Not Dangerous, Doctor States

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Mothers have instilled in their minds the idea that there is a so-called teething age for babies. This goes with a belief that the erupting of teeth is the cause of many baby ailments.

Fifty years or more ago the doctors turned over the care of the baby from the time it was born to the grandmother or some female in the neighborhood who had a reputation for being good with babies.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

There excellent ladies were efficacious but not very scientific, and the teething age idea was one of their most cherished beliefs.

The interest in children from the medical standpoint is of quite recent development. The first book on diseases of children which had any scientific standing was published during the present century. Interest in children and all their problems has grown rapidly over time.

Know More Now

We know, in consequence of this knowledge, far more about the teething age than we used to. We know that it is not dangerous, and that it causes the child little discomfort. The important thing is to see that the child's nutrition is cared for during the erupting of teeth.

A digestive upset, such as vomiting or diarrhea, and other things, such as fever and convulsions, when they happen to occur during the teething age, are ascribed to this phenomenon of the erupting of teeth.

Do not then soothe yourself with the idea that during the teething age everything that the baby may have the matter with it is due to teething entirely. The baby that has a fever during the period of the erupting of teeth may be having measles or diphtheria. So have a careful and thorough examination made of the baby who is sick during the teething age, just the same as at any other time.

The teeth begin to erupt between the fifth and seventh months; at the age of two-and-a-half the first should have all appeared. The corresponding teeth of the two sides of the jaw erupt at the same time. Two lower teeth in the lower jaw appear at the age of six or seven months; the two upper teeth at about the fifth to eighth month, and the lateral teeth from the seventh to the tenth month.

This order, however, is not invariably followed, for teeth may erupt prematurely so that they are even seen at birth. But cases of retarded eruption are much more common than those of premature eruption due to weakness, debility or disease.

During the eruption of the teeth the entire face and head change. There is a gradual elongation and prolongation of the teeth, and a consequent adjustment of the bony structures which hold them.

Questions and Answers

R. E. P.: "Please tell me the best treatment for nasal catarrh. As I am quite a bit of singing, this condition becomes quite annoying at times and prevents me from getting the proper resonance for my voice."

Answer—Nasal catarrh is an old-fashioned term and has no real meaning. Catarrh is the desquamation of the superficial cells of a mucous membrane. In the case of the nose this would mean a secretion and a discharge. It has been found that wide and long-continued clinical observation that such conditions are due not to chronic catarrhal inflammation of the inside of the nose, but to sinus infection or turbinate infection, or to a number of factors.

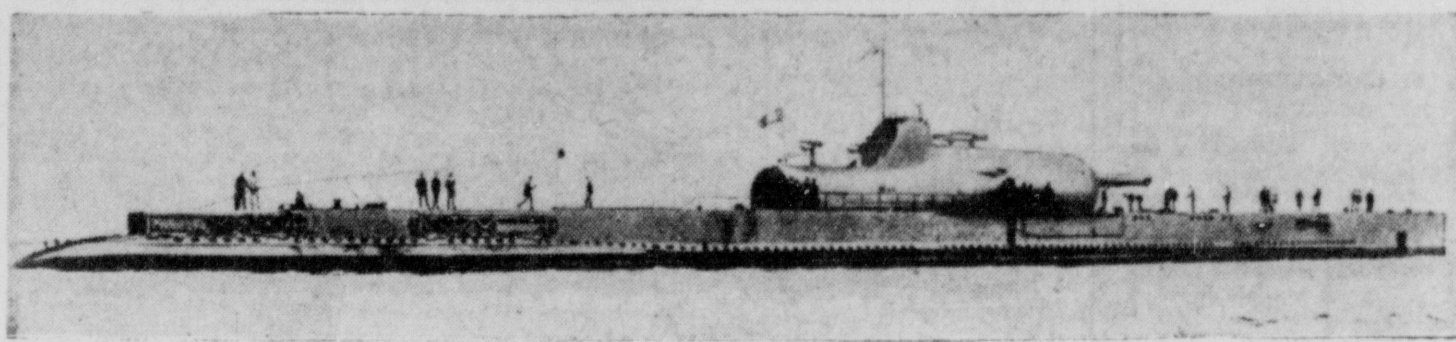

Excessive smoking undoubtedly aggravates nasal infections once they are established. Occupation that involves very dusty or dry or hot surroundings is another. In discussing the treatment in his work on "Diseases of the Nose, Throat and Ear" Dr. Wallace Morrison says: "The underlying cause must be discovered and remedied if possible. This may require a complete study of the body. The local treatment, which can be carried out by the patient, consists in washing out the secretion by snuffing warm saline solution into the nose." Polyps must be removed, the deviated septum must be straightened and sinuses drained.

Nation Counts on a "Slide-Rule Army" That Will Fit Any Crisis, Big or Small

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
AP Feature Service Writer

Washington—While wars roar in Europe, and Congress seethes with the neutrality debate, the United States is calmly building the world's only slide-rule army.

Compressed into its present peacetime minimum, it boasts fewer than 200,000 highly trained officers and men—a smaller defensive force than guards such secondary powers as Argentina, Portugal, Switzerland or Sweden.

Extended under the energy of the PMP, it could be transformed, within six months, into a force of 1,000,000 men. Nothing to compare with the gigantic armies of Europe, but enough, in the eyes of the general staff, for the secondary defense of the nation, assuming that the navy would intercept an enemy far from our shores.

That's the general base for M-day in America, a day nobody wants, but a day every nation must, in troubled times, be prepared to face. What is the PMP?

It is the Protective Mobilization Plan, evolved by the Army General Staff in 1937 under War Secretary Harry Woodring, and now a full series on blueprints for emergency action.

Under the limited emergency recently proclaimed by President Roosevelt, PMP is, in effect, already being put into action. The regular army strength is being boosted slowly beyond the 200,000 mark. When "a sufficient emergency exists," the President may increase the regular army to 280,000. By the end of next June, the strength is expected to be 210,000, and an addition of 17,000 men is provided for after that.

Next The IPP
If further emergency should arise, the next step would be creation of the IPP—the Initial Protective Force. With the regular army as a nucleus, the IPP would total, almost at once, more than 400,000 men, by the addition of the partially trained national guard.

From there on, M-day plans are strictly slide-rule; it's that way because nobody can foresee what kind of an emergency would arise.

If we should face, say, a small-scale invasion of Brazil, there would be no need of an M-day; we have at hand right now the force to meet such a threat.

But if an enemy were about to pounce upon us along the Canadian border, after having subdued the small force in Canada, millions of men would be required double-quick.

That's why the army general staff has developed the slide-rule plans. An Average Emergency Here's how the idea would work in the case of an "average" emergency:

First, the IPP would be created. Then the War Resources board would be transformed into the War Resources administration, headed by an industrial czar, to get equipment and munitions for a huge army. Present supplies would furnish the IPP.

Average M-day visualizes an army of a million men within six months.

The army goes over the top—in maneuvers.

Various reserves would be called up, such as the 20,000 enlisted men and the reserve officers and ROTC men. Perhaps part of the CCC.

Next comes the SSP—the Selective Service Plan, if needed. Let Louis Johnson, assistant secretary of war, tell you how that works:

"The first step would be registration of all male citizens between the ages of 21 and 30. This registration would take place on a single day through the election machinery of the states at the usual polling places.

"Each registrant would be furnished with a numbered card, and names and numbers would be published in each local community. After that, a national drawing would decide who should be first and who last.

"It would then be the task of 6,000 local boards in that many communities to decide whether their neighbor should serve his country as a soldier or sailor, or whether he would be more valuable as a munitions worker or a farmer.

Keystone Corn Huskers Are Busy Preparing for State Tournament

By ALLAN CRIST

Harrisburg, Pa., Oct. 8 (AP)—Grangers and other agriculturists, getting as pepped-up about the coming state corn-husking contest as they might about the world series, are polishing off the last details for the county contests that will precede the main event.

One fact that emerges from the preliminaries is that the entrants in the state meet, at the old airport farm near York on October 26, will have to be good to survive the early competition.

Fourteen of Chester county's eight Granges were represented at a Coatesville meeting to outline plans for the county eliminations at Ingleside Farms and Thorndale, October 18. It will take all day to run off the event. The morning will be devoted to selection of the fifteen contestants who will compete in the finals that afternoon. Fifty-seven officials will be required to run the contest, with a referee, a gleaser, and a truck driver for each competitor.

Has Similar Set-up
Berks county has about the same set-up for its contest near Sinking Spring, Oct. 16, except that only ten high men emerging from the morning round will be matched in the afternoon. Each must bring his own referee and two gleasers. Cash prizes—made up of the spectators' donations—will be awarded in the finals. Church women will operate a hot-lunch stand.

Dauphin county hardly had arranged to hold its meet at Hershey Oct. 17, when eight corn-huskers signed as competitors. If more than fifteen enter, a preliminary contest will be held in the morning.

Out in Greene County, a band concert and an automobile show were "added attractions" for the meet set for Saturday (Oct. 7) near Rice's Landing. The Rice's Landing community club and merchants of nearby, community sponsored the affairs.

Pennsylvania's egg production is going up, the Pennsylvania Federal-State Crop Reporting Service finds.

"Pennsylvania showed a slight increase on September 1 in the number of layers in flocks held by correspondents," it reports. "While about the usual seasonal decline was represented, the rate of egg production for the state was eleven per cent larger than both the 1938 and the ten-year average rate for that date."

Organization Work
The Atlantic Grange presented silver certificates to four members on its sixty-fifth anniversary.

West Cain Grange members, some of whom recalled the days when their group met over the blacksmith's shop, burned their twenty-five-year-old mortgage at a special ceremony.

Rain failed to keep sixty Bradford county Guernsey breeders from their annual picnic at Sylvania.

The Juniata County agricultural Extension Association has named Miss Ruth M. Schult, of Upper Darby, as home economics representative. Brokenstraw Grange held a booster meeting in honor of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Hartley, members for nearly fifty-five years.

The Warren Chamber of Commerce accepted an invitation for its members to be guests of Croydon Grange tomorrow night (Oct. 9).

The German Hill and Red Brush

4-H Pig-feeding Clubs of Forest county completed their project by exhibiting their porkers at a community roundup.

A juvenile Grange was formed by North Coventry Grange, with Richard Walter as its first president.

Fourteen new "greenhands" were taken into the Chief Logan chapter of the Future Farmers of America.

Herb Douthy is the president. John Hay was elected president of the P. F. A. chapter of Berlin-Brothers Valley high school.

Twenty-one P. F. A. members from Hepburnville vocational school bade a one-day tour of South-Central Pennsylvania farming regions.

The Honey Brook P. F. A. group held a two-day farm products show. The five P. F. A. chapters in Adams county are considering formation of a county association.

Around the Countryside
Adams county apple growers, harvesting a commercial crop of about 1,500,000 bushels and noting loss of foreign customers through the European war, are hopeful that England and France will turn to purchases of dried apples, which can be shipped more efficiently than fresh fruit. Members of the county growers' association adopted a resolution opposing sale of their product to the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation.

The auctioneer resorted to a public auction system, one of the Chambersburg livestock sales.

Pennsylvania and West Virginia farmers and law officers teamed-up to kill two sheep dogs blamed for slaying approximately sixty sheep along the border in Greene county. Indiana county bankers forgot interest and loans long enough to visit five farms, then entertain the farmers at a country club dinner.

Test Is Made For Oil or Gas in Garrett Co.

Well Is Being Drilled on Farm of Harry Humbertson

Oakland, Oct. 8.—Although it may reach the proportions of a California gold rush, nevertheless the town of Accident, twenty miles north of Oakland, is headed for a boom. And the reason—oil or gas. It is, if all calculations of those in charge of drilling operations are correct, and of course oil drillers have been wrong before.

Apparently the lay of the land around Accident is quite similar to the land around Uniontown, Pa., where a well is now producing profitably and various investigations have been made in recent years at Accident by interested development companies.

Not so long ago quite a number of tests were made and the tests have pleased the operators. It was less than a month after Accident that they sent a modern well-drilling machine to Accident. This machine set up on the farm of Harry Humbertson, on Town Hill, and has far they have drilled down 1,200 feet. They expect to go to 7,000 feet in order to reach gas or oil, which they feel sure is there.

Several development companies have option for mineral rights and have kept these options over a period of years, landowners in that vicinity each year receiving checks for their options at the rate of about twenty-five cents an acre. A number of years ago drilling operations were undertaken at Accident and they came to an end when the hole was 1,000 feet or more, and could not be recovered. It was estimated at that time that they would have to go 7,000 feet in order to reach gas or oil.

Just exactly what would happen in Accident should such a well be successful, can hardly be imagined. It would be the first well of its kind in Garrett county and certainly would create considerable activity in that territory. It would increase the values immensely and of course create comfortable incomes for those upon whose farms there would be wells. An oil well would give the land owners every eighth barrel of oil.

Marriage Is Announced

An announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Rhoda Brennehan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Brennehan, of Glades, and William Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Miller, Springs, Pa., which took place in the Glades Mennonite church Tuesday afternoon, October 3, at two o'clock. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. I. K. Stetler, pastor of the church.

Several hymns were sung by a quartet composed of Misses Grace and Viola Miller, sisters of the bride, and Misses Catherine and Norma Mae Tice, all of Springs. The bride was attired in white and carried a bouquet of pink roses. The matron of honor, Mrs. Paul Miller, wore an aqua ensemble and carried pale yellow roses. Paul Miller was his brother's best man.

Many friends and relatives of the bride and bridegroom were present. Following the ceremony the couple left for Washington, D. C., and points in Virginia. Mr. Miller is building a home at Springs which the couple expect to occupy in the near future.

Brief Items

H. C. Riggs, cashier of the Garrett National Bank in Oakland has announced that for the convenience of the bank's customers and friends, the main banking room, just off the first floor of the building, will be open for private consultation with business associates and friends. It has an office desk, several chairs and is at the disposal of those who care to use it for business purposes.

The annual Red Cross Roll call to obtain members in the national organization as well as the local chapter, will begin on Armistice Day, Saturday, November 11, and continue until November 30, it was announced this week by Mrs. E. G. Ganser, publicity chairman.

Usually the drive lasted from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving Day, but the proposed changing of the Thanksgiving date by President Roosevelt will not shorten the campaign in any way, it was stated.

Mrs. Paul B. Naylor will again act as roll call chairman. She expects to announce her district chairman within a week or two.

John L. Barchus Dies in Salisbury

Prominent Somerset County Business Man Taken by Death

Meyersdale, Pa., Oct. 8.—John Livengood Barchus, 75, prominent business man and financier of southern Somerset county, died yesterday morning at the family home in Salisbury, where he had resided for seventy years. Born in Fayette county, he removed with his parents, the late Daniel and Barbara Livengood Barchus, to Salisbury in 1870.

His grandfather, John Barchus, a native of Ohio, removed to Garrett county Md., early in the nineteenth century, and his father, Daniel Barchus, carried the United States mail between Uniontown and Wheeling.

Mr. Barchus was a graduate of the local public schools and of the Baltimore College of Accounting. Following his graduation he engaged in mercantile pursuits in Salisbury, and with others, was later founder of the Valley Bank of Salisbury. In 1902 the Valley Bank was organized as a National Bank, known as the First National Bank of Salisbury, of which he was cashier and later president. About a year ago, on account of failing health, by the consent of the directors of the bank, the same was liquidated and merged with the Citizens National Bank of Meyersdale.

Mr. Barchus was a director and promoter of a number of local business enterprises, including the Pennsylvania and Maryland Street Railway Company, the Twentieth Century Manufacturing Company, engaged in the building of traction engines and road rollers, several mining corporations, as well as a large coal and coke company near Charleston, W. Va.

He was united in marriage with Mary Edna McClure, daughter of Capt. Q. A. McClure, McKeesport. Mrs. Barchus died in 1915. Surviving are two sons, John McClure and Daniel L. Barchus, and a daughter, Miss Dorothy Barchus. Mr. Barchus was a member of the Brethren church and of Meyersdale lodge, No. 554, Free and Accepted Masons.

Child Welfare Discussed at Club Meeting

Miss Elizabeth Bradley Speaks to Women at Piedmont

Westport, Oct. 8.—In a talk on child welfare before the Piedmont Junior Woman's club Thursday night in its club rooms, Miss Elizabeth Bradley, Charleston, W. Va., discussed the problems of child assistance in West Virginia.

She stressed the need of finding suitable foster homes for orphans and other unfortunate children, and told of the progress which has been made since the strengthening of the laws regarding child adoption.

Miss Bradley, child welfare consultant with the State Bureau of Child Welfare under the Department of Public Assistance, at present is stationed in Keyser.

Mrs. Donald Mellor, chairman of the library committee, reported that since there are no WPA funds available to pay for the services of a librarian, the Piedmont library is open only because a few juniors give their services. Mrs. Mellor asked for additional volunteers.

Mrs. Raymond C. Hudson, welfare chairman, gave a report on charity work during the summer which included tonsilectomies performed on fourteen children at the offices of Dr. P. E. Berry and Dr. P. R. Wilson at the expense of the club.

Mrs. Paul R. Wilson, chairman of the Girl Scout committee, thanked the club for sponsoring two girls at the summer camp and asked for volunteers to organize another troop or to assist the present troop captain.

Friday night, Nov. 3, was set as the date for the club's annual dance, which will be held at the Clary Club. Mrs. Thomas Ritchie was named general chairman for the affair.

It was decided that delegates would be sent to the district convention Oct. 12, in Keyser, and to a meeting Oct. 21, in Martinsburg. Miss Ethel Fair and Miss Catherine Lynch were received as new members.

Mrs. Kingsley Skidmore, first vice-president, presided in the absence of the president, Mrs. Harold Fredlock, who is ill.

Ash-Van Ormer

Miss Sarah Louise Van Ormer, Luke, and William Osborne Ash, Cumberland, were married Saturday afternoon, Sept. 30, at 5:45 o'clock, at the home of the bride's uncle, Dr. A. B. B. Van Ormer, Huntingdon, Pa.

The bride wore a traveling dress of powder blue with a gray astrakhan jacket and wine accessories. She wore a shoulder corsage of orchids and carried the same prayer book used by her mother at the latter's wedding thirty-five years ago.

Mrs. Ash, a daughter of Mrs. W. L. Van Ormer and the late Dr. Van Ormer, Schellsburg, Pa., is employed in the research department of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper plant. She is a graduate of Wilson college and has done graduate work at the University of Pennsylvania and Penn State college.

Business Is Better in Chemicals Industry

Charleston, W. Va., Oct. 8 (AP)—The chemicals industry in West Virginia was reported today stepping with increased strides into worldwide markets formerly held by Europe's warring countries.

Officials, who disagreed as to the extent, almost unanimously reported an increase in demand from Mexico, Canada, South America and even South Africa and India.

One spokesman said, "this war has shut off the market from England and Germany, and the United States picked up the business and carried it along."

H. K. Eckert, plant manager of the Monsanto Company at Nitro, said his concern has received increased inquiries from abroad, and that orders exceed the volume formerly given to U. S. companies.

President D. W. Stubbfield of the Belle-Alkali Company, said "there is no question but that the chemicals industry is on top" and added:

"The reason is the U. S. is supplying chemicals to South America which formerly came from Germany and England."

Stubbfield further asserted: "It has meant a good deal to the entire chlorine and alkali industry as a whole."

Robert Graham, general manager of the Carbide and Carbon Chemical Company at South Charleston, added this:

"I think all exports have increased some—primarily to get boats sailing now—there may not be one later."

Rejects Proposal To Buy Water from City by 22-21 Vote

Frostburg, Oct. 8.—The diminishing water supply at Grahamtown was the topic of discussion at a public meeting Friday evening in the Grahamtown school. Enoch B. Prichard, president of the Grahamtown Water Company, who presided, explained that the shortage of water was due to inadequate storage facilities at the source of supply on Big Savage mountain and stated that William A. Gunter, of the Frostburg Water Company, which has been selling water to the Grahamtown company, promised to correct the situation as soon as possible. He said the alternate solution was to purchase water from the city of Frostburg at a higher price.

By a vote of twenty-two to twenty-one the proposal to buy water from the city of Frostburg was rejected and it was decided to hold another meeting next Friday and invite Mr. Gunter to attend and submit a report on what action he would deem advisable.

William Schutz Is Taken by Death

Oakland, Oct. 3.—William Linwood Schutz, 79, son of Christina Kline and Peter Schutz, died Friday night at the home of Mrs. Roy Prantz, near Weber's, after an illness of several months. Death was due to heart trouble.

He was born April 16, 1860, at Mt. Savage. When about twenty years of age he went to Waverly, Iowa, where he entered the grocery business. Later he moved to Waterloo, Iowa, where he engaged in the retail show business. At Waterloo in 1887 he was united in marriage to Mary Alice Godfrey and to them were born four children, Stanley, Ursula, Elliott and Madeline. The last fifteen years of his life was spent at Oakland where his wife preceded him in death.

He was a member of the Knights of Pythias lodge for about forty years and was a life-long member of the Episcopal church.

He is survived by his son Elliott of Washington, D. C., and daughter, Mrs. A. S. Thompson, and granddaughter, Lorraine and grandson Stanley of Madison, Wis., and one sister, Mrs. Liana Reider of Tunneton, W. Va. He was a brother of the late Mrs. Henry Weber, of Oakland.

Test Is Made for Oil or Gas in Garrett Co.

Well Is Being Drilled on Farm of Harry Humbertson

Oakland, Oct. 8.—Although it may not reach the proportions of a California gold rush, nevertheless the search for oil and gas, twenty miles south of Oakland, is headed for a boom. And the reason—oil or gas.

That is, if all calculations of those in charge of drilling operations are correct, and of course oil drillers have been wrong before.

Apparently the lay of the land around Accident is quite similar to the land around Uniontown, Pa., where a well is now producing profitably and various investigations have been made in recent years at Accident by interested development companies.

Not so long ago quite a number of tests were made and the tests have pleased the operators so that it was less than a month after they sent a modern well drilling machine to Accident. This well is now set up on the farm of Harry Humbertson, on Town Hill, and is about 30 feet deep. They expect to go to 7,000 feet. They expect to go to 7,000 feet in order to reach gas or oil, which they feel sure is there.

Several development companies are about every acre of ground and are kept these operations over a period of years, landowners in that vicinity each year receiving checks for their options at the rate of about twenty-five cents an acre. A number of years ago drilling operations were undertaken at Accident and they came to an end when the well was lost in the hole at a depth of 1,000 feet or more, and could not be recovered. It was estimated at that time that they would have to go 7,000 feet in order to reach gas or oil.

Just exactly what would happen at Accident should such a well be successful, can hardly be imagined.

It would be the first well of its kind in Garrett county and certainly would create considerable activity in that territory. It would increase the value of land immensely and would create comfortable incomes for those upon whose farms there would be wells. An oil well would give the land owners every eighth barrel of oil.

Marriage Is Announced

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Rhoda Brennan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. West Brennen, of Glades, and John Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Miller, Springs, Pa., which took place in the Glades Menonite church Tuesday afternoon, October 3, at two o'clock. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. I. K. Gier, pastor of the church.

Several hymns were sung by a quartet composed of Misses Grace and Viola Miller, sisters of the groom, and Misses Catherine and Anna Mae Tice, all of Springs.

The bride was attired in white and carried a bouquet of pink roses. The matron of honor, Mrs. Paul Miller, wore an aqua ensemble and carried pale yellow roses. Paul Miller was his brother's best man.

Many friends and relatives of both the bride and bridegroom were present. Following the ceremony the couple left for Washington, D. C., and points in Virginia. Mr. Miller is building a home at Springs which the couple expect to occupy in the near future.

Brief Items

H. C. Riggs, cashier of the Garrett National Bank in Oakland has announced that for the convenience of the bank's customers and friends, a room has been furnished on the first floor of the building, just off from the main banking room. This room can be used for private conferences with business associates and others. It has an office desk, and several chairs and is at the disposal of those who care to use it for business purposes.

The annual Red Cross Roll call to obtain members in the national organization as well as the local chapter, will begin on Armistice Day, Saturday, November 11, and continue until November 30. It was announced this week by Mrs. E. G. Lutzer, publicity chairman.

Usually the drive lasted from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving Day, but the proposed changing of the Thanksgiving date by President Roosevelt will not shorten the campaign in any way, it was stated.

Mrs. Paul B. Naylor will again act as roll call chairman. She expects to announce her district chairman within a week or two.

The Knights of Columbus of Oakland council are planning a Knights of Columbus celebration in honor of Columbus, whose birthday occurred on October 12. The celebration will take the form of a banquet at one of the local hotels. In order that the affair will not conflict with other programs on that day, the celebration will be Tuesday, October 10. The following are the committee of arrangements: R. Browning, A. G. Hesen and Francis R. Shaffer. The council numbers 42 members and Edward Shaffer is the Grand Knight.

Goodwill Tour Visits Moorefield

Boy's Band from Harrisonburg Plays Several Selections

Moorefield, W. Va., Oct. 8.—The annual Harrisonburg-Rockingham Chamber of Commerce Goodwill tour arrived in Moorefield about noon Thursday on its way to Elkins to attend the Forest Festival. A bus, carrying thirty-two members of the Harrisonburg Boys' Band and a motorcade made up the party.

The group stopped for a few minutes in town while the band played several selections and then went on to Petersburg where lunch was served. On their way to Moorefield, stops were made at Broadway and Mathias.

Citizens of Moorefield turned out to hear the band and were especially pleased with the miniature band leader, the son of the director, who, complete with uniform and baton, directed the music.

The clean up and keep clean campaign inaugurated by the Woman's Club is to receive the fullest support of the town council, it was announced after a meeting of the council. Beginning Saturday, the town will furnish a truck and driver and the Boy Scouts will assist in gathering up the debris each Saturday.

The clean up drive coincides with the work campaign in progress by the scouts. Scoutmaster L. R. Grover announced that money earned by the Scouts in odd jobs goes to the troop treasury to buy equipment. Boys may be secured for these odd jobs on Saturday and after school hours by notifying Scoutmaster Grover.

The district round-up of Scouts was held at Rawlings Saturday and Sunday and Scoutmaster Grover took about ten of the local troop to participate. Eight hundred scout were expected to be present.

District Scout Meeting

The Potomac Council Boy Scouts of America held a district conference at Moorefield Wednesday. Scout leaders, executives and sponsors from Moorefield, Romney and Petersburg were present. Chief Lator of Cumberland was also in attendance.

It was decided to hold the annual meeting of the Potomac Council in Moorefield Monday evening, Oct. 27, at 6:30 at the McNeill Hotel.

The district round-up of Scouts was held at Rawlings Saturday and Sunday and Scoutmaster Grover took about ten of the local troop to participate. Eight hundred scout were expected to be present.

Grahamtown Is Against Buying Frostburg Water

Rejects Proposal To Buy Water from City by 22-21 Vote

Frostburg, Oct. 8.—The diminishing water supply at Grahamtown was the topic of discussion at a public meeting Friday evening in the Grahamtown school. Enoch B. Prichard, president of the Grahamtown Water Company, who presided, explained that the shortage of water was due to inadequate storage facilities at the source of supply on Big Savage mountain and stated that William A. Gunter, of the Frostburg Water Company, which has been selling water to the Grahamtown company, promised to correct the situation as soon as possible. He said the alternate solution was to purchase water from the city of Frostburg at a higher price.

By a vote of twenty-two to twenty-one the proposal to buy water from the city of Frostburg was rejected and it was decided to hold another meeting next Friday and invite Mr. Gunter to attend and submit a report on what action he would deem advisable.

Keeping Neckline In Line

By HELEN FOLLETT

WATCH YOUR neckline. When getting a new frock be mindful of the cut below your Adam's apple. An ugly line there can detract from the prettiest face.

Miss Plump makes her cheeks look fuller, her face shorter when she wears a frock with a rounded neckline. The deep V cut will give length to her vantage; it will also make the full bust seem smaller. No woman with a thin face, long nose and flat chest should indulge in the V effect, which will make her look as if she had been dragged through a knothole. Simple rules, these, but they are being broken all the time. It must be that some of the honeys haven't the seeing eye, don't take time to meditate before the mirror and find out what's what in dress.

The square neck, which is being revived, is the most becoming cut of all. It looks well on the short and the tall, the fat and the lean.

Girls with fresh young faces can wear the turtle neck which comes on some of the cute winter pull-overs. The narrow, rounded collar is also their beauty dish. Women whose necks have gone back on them, got discouraged and fallen into lines, look best with high, narrow collars or a tiny short V.

They can do a lot to put the neck in form by massaging with toilet lanoline at night, sponging with ice-cold water in the morning. Turning the head from side to side restores fiber tone.

Red lines on the nose or cheeks are ruptured capillaries. The tiny thread-like veins have broken their bounds.

Heavy eaters are subjected to this unpleasant blemish, which can be removed by the electric needle.

FRANCES ROBINSON... dress lines are cut to add to her beauty.

In the hands of an experienced, conscientious operator, no cream or lotion will have any effect upon it, since it is a part of the tissue.

If you are among the afflicted, don't let anybody tell you to apply an acid. Great damage can be done by such meddling. Scars form easily and they are worse than the original trouble.

Sport Clothes Chosen by Girls To Please Men

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Nowadays, when so many girls can dive and ski and play a hard game of tennis and when sports outfits play such a part in every woman's wardrobe, you may have the idea that the athletic girl is on top.

You may think that not only do men greatly admire the girl with muscles, but that they are completely sold to commonsense clothes and that they fairly swarm after the sturdy two-fisted young woman whom nobody would ever dream of helping across the street or in and out of a car.

Well, if you have thought so, you are mistaken.

Girls who knew what they are talking about, bright girls from the very heart of college life, tell us that femininity is the thing and that if a girl has the faintest interest in beaux and marriage, she'd better cut out all sports togs that aren't above all, alluring.

Eight girls from leading American colleges, proud winners of fellowships awarded by a New York school of fashion careers, met in Rockefeller Center the other day and compared notes.

Has a Strong Hold

According to these reliable authorities, fashion has a strong hold at present on the typical American girl, even the American college girl, who has at times allowed the outside world to believe that she went in for being rather sloppy and rough-shod. She is now completely bent on being chic.

At the college she came from one of these fellowships-winner disclosed the girls earnestly devote themselves to study and they follow certain spots. But they don't believe in getting themselves up either as blue-stockings or as girlish rough-necks. Socks for campus wear are completely taboo. And only the very athletic girls ever allow themselves to be seen in flat-heeled shoes.

But this isn't just a fad. There's a reason behind it. These young students of life, as well as of books, believe they know the type of girl and the kind of clothes most attractive to men. They believe it's worth while to try to meet this unspoken demand.

"We dress to please the men and admit it," said this girl who knows. "High heels? Perhaps they're not sensible and perhaps they're not much use for hiking. But didn't somebody say you have to suffer to be beautiful? We wear our high heels, even if we suffer. And if you want any proof that we know what we're about I'll give it to you. It's this—"

Good Habits Are Essential for School Success

Method in Study 'Is an Important Thing for Public

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.
The most important thing for school success is to learn good methods and habits of study. Many bright students in the grades, high school and college lag or fail because he has never acquired such habits. He has two problems: (a) To use his time effectively in the preparation, discussion or lecture period. (b) To use his time effectively when preparing for his next class examination.

What can we parents do about it? Beginning with the baby, we can be reading to him and continuing to do so past the time when he enters school give him a reading background and motivate his interest in the content, in meaning. We have even read to him at home occasionally from his school assignments in geography, history, science and the like, and help him pick out the high spots and derive ideas which he can express in his own language.

Habits at Home
Before the child begins to get assignments at school to be done at home, we parents can cultivate in him habits of concentrated mental exercise by having him read from a book or magazine for, say, half an hour each evening. When he gets homework assignments, we should see to it that he goes at the task at a regular time and in a regular place each evening, preferably right after the evening meal.

Never mind about his full stomach. If he waits till it is deflated, he may have been diverted by the fun of the radio or any one of hundreds of other distractions. Unless he has a quiet room of his own—and not many have—let the family keep reasonably quiet, with the radio silent and no one talking to him about him. Help him cultivate the habit of getting everything ready before the regular time for beginning study, so he can go at it with a vim.

Children from 8 to 14 who develop the habit of running about after dinner on evenings before school days, will not readily take to the task of doing homework when they reach senior high school age. I wish there were no assigned homework in the lower elementary grades, and very little in the upper elementary grades, with more reasonable assignments than those that prevail in senior high school. For some children the homework is intolerable. This usually happens because of one or two inconsiderate teachers. They need to be curbed by the principal. I wish principals would take the responsibility they should in protecting children from excessive homework assignments.

Way to Efficiency
The best way for one to gain efficiency in study is during the recitation, discussion or lecture in class. The high school youth, who excels as a student but does not spend excessive hours at his study, said: "When I leave class and take stock of myself during the past period, I ask myself not how many questions I answered right, but how many of all that were asked of anybody I could have answered correctly."

There are some good books to aid parents and teachers in helping the child and youth study effectively, and for helping the pupil to help himself. You may have, without cost, a list of such books by writing in care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

Solving Parent Problem
Q. When is the earliest time a youth should have his first lesson in learning to drive an automobile?
A. On the birthday when he has attained to the legal age for driving in his state.

Strand Stage Show Beautiful, Fast-Moving

One of the most elaborate and beautiful stage shows ever to play here is the new rhapsody in femininity, "The French Follies" which opened last midnight and continues today and tomorrow at the Strand Theatre.

The production is the work of Solie Childs, noted American showman. In its cast are a number of famous stars. A sensational act, "The Beauty and The Beast" highlights the revue with its nudity described as "superlatively artistic."

Mr. Childs is said to have treated his French Follies a bit differently than usual productions. All his dances are staged extremely modern and have behind them a reason for being. This is particularly true of the opening scene and the finale, wherein by unique lighting and staging unusual effects are obtained.

The vaudeville includes Six Arabian Tumblers, thrills and chills—super strength; Clark and Curtis, the West Coast's favorite comics; the Cordova Sextet, spills and spins on the teeterboard; Kiki and Ruth Morgan, greased-lightning in tap shoes; the Donnelly Sisters, specialty dancers and Al "Rags" Boeke who paints pictures with his ragged clothes.

The screen attraction is "The Escape" a 20th Century-Fox melodrama hit starring June Gale, Kane Richmond and Henry Armetta.

Darryl F. Zanuck's sensational new discovery, lovely Brenda Joyce, shares a prominent featured position with Richard Dix in the cast supporting Richard Greene in "Here I Am A Stranger," 20th Century-Fox drama starting Wednesday at the Strand.

Miss Joyce, who triumphed recently in her first screen appearance as Fern Simon in Louis Bromfield's "The Rains Came," was awarded her role in "Here I Am A Stranger" as a result of this success. The film is a daringly significant story of modern life that considerably out of the beaten path, with a superb cast giving the greatest portrayals of their careers.

"Good Girls Go to Paris" Opens at Maryland

With a provocative title said to be only a shadowy plot, Columbia's "Good Girls Go to Paris" opens today at the Maryland Theater. Melvyn Douglas and Joan Blondell, sensational co-stars of "There's Always a Woman," again are teamed in the new film.

"Good Girls Go to Paris" presents Douglas in a new and distinctive characterization, that of an English exchange professor slightly bewildered by the feverish, hectic activity at an American university, and completely dazed by his suddenly acquired role of confidential adviser to a young waitress whose sole ambition is to go to Paris. Laugh-provoking adventures involving the two stars take them from the college town to New York and eventually to a millionaire's mansion where the tangled threads of half-a-dozen lives provides the suspense which builds to the surprising climax.

Important featured roles are played by Walter Connolly, as the capricious millionaire; Isabel Jeans, a flighty, middle-aged woman; Alan Curtis, playboy grandson; and Joan Perry, the granddaughter. Other supporting parts are played by Alexander D'Arcy, Stanley Brown, Robert Sterling and Dick Fiske. The comedy was directed by Alexander Hall who guided the first Douglas-Blondell success, "There's Always a Woman."

"Other Woman" Pose To Aid Benefactor

Miss Rogers undertakes an odd task, that of uniting a badly spoiled and selfish family by appearing to be a menace to their carefree existence. The nominal head of the household, Walter Connolly, is neglected and lonely; his wife and children think of him only as a one-man mint, and he realizes that something drastic has to be done.

Accordingly he brings Miss Rogers to stay with him, following a hectic evening of night-clubbing with her after he has found her in Central Park. Her presence shocks the thoughtless wife and the two grownup children into behaving themselves and into paying some attention to their husband and father.

Out of this laughter-packed situation arises the many uproarious comedy scenes of the film, along with plenty of fast-moving romance and contrasting dramatic moments. Tim Holt and a new "find" from the "Gateway to Hollywood" talent quest, Kathryn Adams, play the two children, and Verree Teasdale the wife, with James Ellison as a class-conscious chauffeur.

GOLDEN GIRL

ances as the idealistic doctor of "The Citadel," once again reveals his consummate artistry and acting skill in "Goodbye, Mr. Chips," filmization of the celebrated James Hilton novel, which is currently on view at the Embassy Theater for the next two days.

The story of "Mr. Chips" is the story of the education of youth the world over. Donat plays the kindly schoolmaster who comes to a large English school as a young man and passes his entire life there. He becomes the ideal of the boys in his care, and when these boys grow up they send their sons back to "Mr. Chips." He meets and falls in love with a young and beautiful girl and when she ultimately dies the tragedy leaves "Chips" with a great human understanding and compassion.

Rich in humor, warm in tenderness and permeated with the rollicking high spirits of youth, "Five Little Peppers and How They Grew" opens at the Embassy Theater yesterday. Columbia's film version of the Margaret Sidney juvenile classic is a sympathetic and sensitive treatment that successfully transfers the humor and poignancy of the book to the screen. An excellent cast, headed by Edith Fellows as the dynamic little Polly Peppers,

The best way for one to gain efficiency in study is during the recitation, discussion or lecture in class. A student but does not spend excessive hours at his study, and take myself during the past period, I answered right, but how many of the questions were asked of anybody I could have answered correctly.

There are some good books to aid parents and teachers in helping the child and youth study effectively, and for helping the pupil to help himself. You may have without cost a list of such books by writing me in care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

Strand Stage Show Beautiful, Fast-Moving

One of the most elaborate and beautiful stage shows ever to play here is the new rhapsody in femininity, "The French Follies" which opened last midnight and continues today and tomorrow at the Strand Theatre.

The production is the work of Solie Childs, noted American showman. In its cast are a number of famous stars. A sensational act, "The Beauty and the Beast" highlights the revue with its nudity described as "superlatively artistic." Mr. Childs is said to have treated his French Follies a bit differently than usual productions. All his dances are staged extremely modern and have behind them a reason for being. This is particularly true of the opening scene and the finale, wherein by unique lighting and staging unusual effects are obtained.

The vaudeville includes Six Arabian Tumblers, thrills and chills—super strength; Clark and Curtis, the West Coast's favorite comics; the Cordova Sextet, spills and spins on the teeterboard; Kiki and Ruth Morgan, greased-lightning in tap shoes; the Donnelly Sisters, specialty dancers and Al "Rags" Boeke who paints pictures with his ragged clothes.

The screen attraction is "The Escape" a 20th Century-Fox melodrama hit starring June Gale, Kane Richmond and Henry Arnetta.

Darryl F. Zanuck's sensational new discovery, lovely Brenda Joyce, shares a prominent featured position with Richard Dix in the cast supporting Richard Greene in "Here I Am A Stranger" 20th Century-Fox drama starting Wednesday at the Strand.

Miss Joyce, who triumphed recently in her first screen appearance as Fern Simon in Louis Bromfield's "The Rains Came," was awarded her role in "Here I Am A Stranger" as a result of this success. The film is a daringly significant story of modern life that is considerably out of the beaten path, with a superb cast giving the greatest portrayals of their careers.

"Good Girls Go to Paris" Opens at Maryland

With a provocative title said to be only a shadowy plot, Columbia's "Good Girls Go to Paris" opens today at the Maryland Theater. Melvyn Douglas and Joan Blondell, sensational co-stars of "There's Always a Woman," again are teamed in the new film.

"Good Girls Go to Paris" presents Douglas in a new and distinctive characterization, that of an English exchange professor slightly bewildered by the feverish, hectic activity at an American university, and completely dazed by his suddenly acquired role of confidential adviser to a young waitress whose sole ambition is to go to Paris. Laugh-provoking adventures involving the two stars take them from the college town to New York and eventually to a millionaire's mansion where the tangled threads of half-a-dozen lives provides the suspense which builds to the surprising climax.

Important featured roles are played by Walter Connolly, as the capricious millionaire; Isabel Jeans, a flighty, middle-aged woman; Alan Curtis, playboy grandson; and Joan Perry, the granddaughter. Other supporting parts are played by Alexander D'Arcy, Stanley Brown, Robert Sterling and Dick Fiske. The comedy was directed by Alexander Hall who guided the first Douglas-Blondell success, "There's Always a Woman."

"Other Woman" Pose To Aid Benefactor

Miss Rogers undertakes an odd task, that of uniting a badly spoiled and selfish family by appearing to be a menace to their carefree existence. The nominal head of the household, Walter Connolly, is neglected and lonely; his wife and children think of him only as a one-man mint, and he realizes that something drastic has to be done.

Accordingly he brings Miss Rogers to stay with him, following a hectic evening of night-clubbing with her after he has found her in Central Park. Her presence shocks the thoughtless wife and the two grownup children into behaving themselves and into paying some attention to their husband and father.

Out of this laughter-packed situation arises the many uproarious comedy scenes of the film, along with plenty of fast-moving romance and contrasting dramatic moments. Tim Holt and a new "find" from the "Gateway to Hollywood" talent quest, Kathryn Adams, play the two children, and Verree Teasdale the wife, with James Ellison as a class-conscious chauffeur.

"Goodbye, Mr. Chips" Embassy Feature

GOLDEN GIRL

ances as the idealistic doctor of "The Citadel," once again reveals his consummate artistry and acting skill in "Goodbye, Mr. Chips," filmization of the celebrated James Hilton novel, which is currently on view at the Embassy Theater for the next two days.

The story of "Mr. Chips" is the story of the education of youth the world over. Donat plays the kindly schoolmaster who comes to a large English school as a young man and passes his entire life there. He becomes the ideal of the boys in his care, and when these boys grow up they send their sons back to "Mr. Chips." He meets and falls in love with a young and beautiful girl and when she ultimately dies the tragedy leaves "Chips" with a great human understanding and compassion.

Rich in humor, warm in tenderness and permeated with the rollicking high spirits of youth, "Five Little Peppers and How They Grew" opens at the Embassy Theater yesterday. Columbia's film version of the Margaret Sidney juvenile classic is a sympathetic and sensitive treatment that successfully transfers the humor and poignancy of the book to the screen. An excellent cast, headed by Edith Fellows as the dynamic little Polly Pepper, appear just as if they had stepped from the pages of the book and the result is a film that should be every bit as popular as the amazingly successful literary series.

COMPLETE EXAMINATION

AT LEAST ONCE A YEAR

There are few diseases not curable to a large extent, if taken in time. Early symptoms of Bright's disease are plain to the physician, but not to the layman.

Tuberculosis can be detected in the early stages, by a thorough physical examination. Anemia, with its attendant cause, is properly definable only from a thorough study. Cancer can be prevented and cured in many cases by the physician having a chance at it in time. Serious heart trouble can often be avoided, if the doctor is given an opportunity to treat conditions leading up to it.

It is unnecessary for a physician to make a complete examination of every patient who consults him, but for your own protection, you should have a complete and reassuring physical examination at least once a year.

Remember, the doctor can not know all about you and your condition, just because you tell him your name and address. Give him a real opportunity to keep you well.

Old Exports Capture Tri-County Crown

Defeat Keyser 10-6 in Deciding Game of Series

Won Necessary Two Games of Three on Keyser's Home Field

Title Is First Won by Local Brewers in League History

Westernport, Oct. 8.—The Cumberland Old Export baseball team captured the Tri-County League championship here this afternoon by trimming the Keyser (W. Va.) Reds 10-6 in the deciding tilt of a three-game series. The Exports, second-half loop winners, capped the first game of the playoff at Keyser two weeks ago and the Reds made possible a third game by turning back the Brewers at Cumberland's North End Playground last Sunday.

Yesterday's victory gave the Exports their first championship in the four years the Tri-County League has been in existence and was more or less a personal triumph for John Hafer in his first year as manager of the Brewers. Keyser was the defending champion, having won the title the last two seasons.

Exports Hit Timely

The Brewers combined timely hitting and alert fielding to bring home the bacon. Paced by big George Rice and Ray Thompson, the Brewers blasted two Red hurlers for fourteen safeties, four of them for extra bases. Rice flogged a pair of triples and a single and Thompson secured three safe knocks, one of them a two-bagger. Lou Riehl's accurate throwing and line-drive smags that bordered on the sensational by Rice and "Chic" Cabbage helped protect the Brewers' lead which they held throughout the entire game. Riehl cut two Reds down at the plate on long throws, each time in the midst of a Keyser rally.

The losers found Derl Keller for twelve hits, but the Export hurler scattered them and succeeded in going the full route. Catcher McLucas and shortstop Boob Tinsler were the Reds' top bombers with three hits apiece. Bud Mosser and Charles Coco each drove in a pair of Red runs.

Hoffman Driven from Box

The Brewers crammed their talons into four big innings, getting three in the second, four in the third, two in the fourth and one in the fifth.

Oilers Reach Final Tri-Towns Playoff

Westernport, Oct. 8.—Jake's Oilers, who finished the regular season in first place, qualified for the final three-game series in the Tri-Towns Softball League playoff by taking the second straight game from American Legion Friday by forfeit.

The Oilers, who were leading the League 9-2 when the latter walked off the field, will oppose the winner of another three-game series between Westernport Sunday School and Tony's Wolverines.

Westernport took possession of fourth place by defeating the Moose 1-0 in a game Thursday which decided fourth and fifth places. The Wolverines wound up the season in second place with American Legion third.

Before the Legion crew threw up the sponge, the Oilers banged out four doubles, a triple and a homer. The Legion used two hurlers, who gave up a dozen blows in five innings.

Campbell limited the Moose to two hits in twirling Westernport to victory in the playoff battle. Dawson, Westernport first sacker, started with some sensational fielding and clouted a homer in the fifth for the only run of the game. Horsewhipping Adds Spice To Sports Writer's Life

By JOHN LARDNER (Released by North American Newspaper Alliance)
Cincinnati, Oct. 8.—"What do you mean," writer Mervin J. Murgatroyd, hay, grain, and feed, "by saying that William E. Benswanger is no gentleman?"

"How much does Mike pay you per annum," demands C. Victor Whip, insurance, "to tout his bum fighters?"

"Retract your slurs on Bucky Walters' character," requests Elise J. Spitz, housewife, "or my husband will call on you with a horsewhip."

It seems that your correspondent has been getting out of the lately, an odd brings up the old problem (old, but ever fresh and real to us slander-mongers and traducers of reputation) of how to deal with people who call around with a horsewhip, like the husband of Elise J. Spitz, housewife. There is a loud knock on the door of my costly office suite right now. It may be Mr. Spitz himself, so we will have to work fast.

Policy of Nonchalance

In horsewhip cases, my policy is usually one of nonchalance. For instance, a bell will ring on the desk of my inner sanctum, and Miss Sweedle, head of the secretarial staff, will address me with considerable reverence.

"There is a man out here who says he is Montague Slugg," announces Miss Sweedle. Naturally, it is the work of a moment for me to recall that I referred to Montague Slugg last Tuesday as a white rat. As to the justice of this claim, that is neither here nor there. Doubtless the man Slugg could prove by anatomical tests that he is not technically a white rat but a fellow is entitled to a little poetic license in the writing game.

"Throw him out," I tell Miss Sweedle, who once pulled the stroke out for Wellesley, as well as the Nos. 7, 6, 5, and 4 cars. Then there is a crash, consisting of Montague Slugg of Slugg Bros., landing on the sidewalk twenty floors below, and I sit back satisfied that I have shown I cannot be intimidated.

However, the matter does not always end there. Slugg may be stubborn and resourceful. As I remember this particular case, he pulled himself together in remarkably fast time. Half an hour later, a horsewhip flew through the window and landed in the middle of the floor of my office, closely followed by Slugg of Slugg Bros. Apparently he was not going to let bygones be bygones. Contact with Miss Sweedle had failed to soothe him.

"Where is my horsewhip?" were his first words. "I threw it in here." "How did you happen to come through the window?" I asked him, sparring for time. "There is a reception desk outside my office at which visitors are welcomed cordially, one and all."

"I tried that first," admitted Slugg. "Then I climbed up the fire escape. Where is my horsewhip?"

"Soft Words Don't Deflect Wrath" "What do you want with a horsewhip?" I asked him patiently. "Do you drive a horse?" I thought you had a convertible coupe."

Montague Slugg had located the horsewhip by now. Picking it up, he made a couple of practice passes at the water-cooler. Breaking it in two. Of all the characters who have called at my office to horsewhip me, none showed greater mastery of the weapon than Slugg. He had a great wrist, a good eye, and plenty of follow-through. A fellow who horsewhipped me in Rangon in '97 was a little faster, perhaps, but he lacked Slugg's accuracy and control. I understand it is a matter of wrist action.

"You called me a white rat," said Slugg, getting down to the principal business of the meeting. "Did I say 'white'?" I inquired, reaching for my notes. "Let me go through these a minute. I think you have the color wrong."

"Never mind the color," barked Montague Slugg, who seemed to be restless. "White or black, you called me a rat, and I am going to whip you within an inch of your life."

Joe McCarthy Happiest Man In Baseball

Yanks Stage Celebration after Winning Fourth World's Series

By CHARLES DUNKLEY
Crosley Field, Cincinnati, Oct. 8 (P)—Joseph Vincent McCarthy, kindly 51-year old leader of the New York Yankees, was the happiest man in the baseball world tonight. Deacon Bill McKeechie, boss of his vanquished royal Reds, was the saddest.

McCarthy, with just a trace of a tear in his eye, joined with the Yankees in the noisiest clubhouse victory celebration they have ever staged. He was supremely happy because his players had just presented him with a fourth world's championship and their ninth consecutive world's series victory.

First of the Yankee players to storm into the dressing room was shortstop Frank Crosetti, left fielder George Selkirk, and second baseman Joe Gordon.

Fletcher Leads Singing
Grayling Art Fletcher, one of the coaches and McCarthy's first lieutenant, jumped on a trunk and broke out into the familiar song "The Sidewalks of New York."

All the players joined in, with McCarthy standing beside Fletcher. After the last words of the song bounded into the rafters Fletcher jumped from the trunk to McCarthy's back.

In walked William Harridge, president of the American League, extending his hand in congratulation. McCarthy beamed.

"Just think, Mr. Harridge," he said, "this is our ninth straight world series victory. It's our fourth world's championship. No other team ever has done that. No other team had even won three until we did it last year."

Asked if the series came out as he expected, McCarthy just grinned. "Anyone you beat a couple of pitchers like Derringer and Walters," he said, "you have a helluva tough job on your hands."

Suddenly McCarthy spied Joe Di Maggio, whose single to right in the ninth inning broke up the game.

"The old 'Dago' is OK," McCarthy said, "throwing his arms around the outfield star. 'We'll have plenty of spaghetti in San Francisco this winter.'"

Reds Know They're Licked
Up in the Reds' clubhouse was a team that knew it was whipped. Scarcely a word was said as the beaten players filed up. Even their spikes made muted sounds on the metal steps.

Manager McKeechie went into his office and sat in the swivel chair with his feet on the window sill. He stared out the window for some minutes. Once he muttered a short string of bitter words but it was hard to tell if he was thinking of the Yankees, the Reds, or the luck that cursed.

Paul Derringer, already out of his shower, went in the office and sat at the edge of McKeechie's chair. The boss spanked him affectionately and they talked for a moment.

Derringer, as near a pitching machine as anything in the major leagues, said half to himself, half to Bill Werber, "you just can't make a mistake. I got Keller twice on easy ones and then I made one mistake. I can't be a machine all the time."

Outsmarted W. Va. Mountaineers To Stow Panther Jinx

Look to Greener Fields after 20-0 Setback by Pitt Eleven

By DICK BOYD
Associated Press Staff Writer
West Virginia University, outsmarted by a team of slashing opportunists at Pittsburgh, stowed the Panther jinx in mothballs for another year and looked today to greener fields.

The Mountaineers had little to save the sting of the 20-0 setback suffered in Panther Hollow, except perhaps the realization the season is young and the prospects still bright for a successful year.

Cincinnati University is West Virginia's next opponent on this week's schedule of state college games, few of which appear to hold particular significance.

The meeting, fourth contest between the two, will be played at Cincinnati Saturday in the only night game on the Mountaineer program. Cincinnati was overpowered by Dayton, 32 to 2, the past week-end.

Other Saturday results included the 64 to 0 lacing Marshall handed Salem at Huntington between two teams which didn't belong on the same field; Concord's 7 to 0 conquest of Potomac State, West Liberty's 20 to 0 rout of Holbrook, the defeat of Bethany, 30 to 7, by Glenville, and Shepherd's 13-0 victory over the U. S. Army Medical Corps at Carlisle, Pa.

In the other out-of-state game, Davis and Elkins fell before the Colonials of George Washington, 19 to 0.

Bethany leads off on the schedule for the week ahead, meeting the game Salem eleven which fell before Marshall, in a night game at Sistersville Thursday.

West Liberty and New River are also scheduled for night contests, the former meeting Glenville at New Martinsville while New River plays Rio Grande at Rio Grande, Ohio, on Friday.

Saturday's schedule includes the contest in which Marshall will meet its old Buckeye Conference foe, Miami, at Oxford, Ohio, and Morris Harvey plays West Virginia Wesleyan, defeated twice in its two starts this year, at Charleston. Morris Harvey has not been scored upon in three games to date.

The Team With Everything
Cincinnati, Ohio, Oct. 8.—You can enter the Yankees in your book as the team that has everything. They may or may not have everything in the same game. But they have everything to call on when it is needed to win an important game.

They have more than their share of power. They have four or five men who can break up a battle at any given moment.

They have one of the best defensive fielding clubs I've ever seen. They have an exceptionally strong pitching staff.

But that isn't all of it. I know most of them well. They have as fine a team spirit as I've ever seen on any college football team.

And they have more than their share of intelligence. If you travel with them you will know just what I mean. They are keen, smart and there isn't a tough mug or a surly guy in the lineup.

Games Won by Educated Toes Of Grid Players

Several Maryland Victories Scored as Result of Extra Points

By WILLIAM NEEDHAM
Baltimore, Oct. 8. (P)—Usually the glory goes to the fancy-stepping, swivel-hipped gents who get the touchdowns.

Today, there was glory to spare in Maryland for the boys with the educated toes, who turn sixes into sevens by booting 'em through the goal-posts.

If Punkin Wood hadn't made his two place-kick chances good for extra points yesterday, Navy wouldn't have beaten Virginia 14 to 12. If Husky Persh Mondorff—a one-man scoring spree—hadn't booted an extra point and a field goal, Maryland's 12-0 victory over Western Maryland would have looked far sorer than it did.

And if Washington College had collected the two points-after-touchdown it needed, the Shoremen would have beaten Swarthmore—instead of losing, 13 to 12.

On the other hand extra points couldn't have helped Blue Ridge much. The final score was Upsala, 19; Blue Ridge, 0. In three games, the New Windsor team hasn't put over a touchdown.

Virginia Scores Navy
It's pretty well determined that Virginia gave the Midshipmen the scare of their nautical lives at Annapolis, and there are those who will say the Cavaliers outplayed the Tars. The scoreboard showed simply that Navy won by the bare margin of Wood's two extra-point placements.

Once again, Navy's second-string accounted for the touchdowns. Wes Gebert and Bob Leonard chalked 'em up while the varsity backs for whom they once were understudies warmed the bench.

Mondorff the 190-pounder from Emmitsburg, who never played football before he came to Maryland, scored a touchdown, booted an extra point, kicked a field goal, and generally made himself a nuisance to Western Maryland last night.

Elder, Western Maryland quarterback, contributed Maryland's other two points when he bobbled a bad center pass behind his own goal and was snowed under for a safety.

Maryland's superior reserve strength turned the trick, but the trick itself was nothing to cheer about. Western Maryland made the Terrapin pass defense look foolish, once completing five straight heaves for a gain of nearly fifty yards.

Dartmouth Plays Navy
Washington college, opening its season, muffed two extra-point chances when one would have meant a tie, and two the game. The Shoremen went down fighting and unsmoked a fourth-quarter drive to Swarthmore's six before they were stopped.

Blue Ridge found Upsala lumbering but powerful, threatened once to the seven, but was too weak to make the grade.

Next Saturday's games, in light of yesterday's results, looked tough for all hands. Navy meets Dartmouth in Baltimore Stadium; Maryland travels to Virginia at Charlottesville; Western Maryland entertains Mt. St. Mary's at Westminster; Washington opens the Johns Hopkins season, and Blue Ridge meets Hofstra at Hampstead, L. I.

Sidelights on The World Series

Two Five-Round Bouts To Top Card of Eight or More

The Shamrock A. C. amateur boxing card will get underway tonight at 8:30 p. m. in the ballroom of the Queen City hotel.

This will be the first time a boxing bout has been held at the hotel. Bill Niland promoter of the affair gave out the following list of bouts to be held:

Main Bout—Five Rounds
Lawrence "Curley" Hughes 120 lbs. Ridgeley, W. Va., vs. Armand Franchi 122 lbs. Cumberland.
Semi-Final—Five Rounds
Delton Parker 128 lbs. Cumberland, Md., vs. "Mount" Joy 126 lbs. Lancaster, Pa.

Other Bouts
"Chink" Davis 126 lbs. Cumberland vs. "Bill" Corbin 126 lbs. Greenspring, W. Va.
Ray Landis 135 lbs. Greenspring, W. Va., vs. "Johnnie" Stone 135 lbs. Lancaster, Pa.
"Gene" Kiddy 140 lbs. Devon vs. "Johnnie" Booth 138 Eckhart, Md.
"Kid" Buckwheat 155 Cumberland vs. "Fats" Ogle 155 lbs. Greenspring, W. Va.
"Red" Riley 150 Cumberland vs. Lewis Twigg 148 lbs. Cumberland.
Joe Zellinsky 185 Frostburg, Md., vs. "Wild Bill" Wiseman 180 Devon A. C. or Lou Miller 185 lbs., Lancaster, Pa.

All the fine pitching, power hitting and great fielding of the 1939 series probably will be forgotten in this winter's hot stove league discussions, as the 32,794 fans who witnessed the fourth game tell about big Ernie (Schnozzola) Lombardi, Cincinnati catcher, and his "dying swan" act in the tenth as the Yankees received the verdict on a silver platter from the Reds.

The right field bleachers didn't think too much of Goodman for letting Dimaggio's hit get away from him in the fatal tenth, and his territory was showered with cushions by the fans.

Oral Hildebrand, starting Yankee pitcher, quit voluntarily after the fourth frame, due to a pain in his side. He had allowed but two hits in four frames. Craft, Cincy's center-fielder, and the hitting fool of the series, also gave way to an upset stomach after striking out in the second, leaving the gate open for Al Simmons' entry in the classic.

In turning in his fine seven-inning stretch on the mound Paul Derringer pitched just seventy-six balls to twenty-six batters, average of 2.92 per man. He retired Joe DiMaggio three times on just four pitches.

Frostburg Soccer Team Defeats the South End Boosters
The result of the South End Boosters soccer team's handling of the ball, furnished the Frostburg soccer team with enough "breaks" to eke out a 3-2 win on the loser's field.

For ninety minutes the Boosters' backs held the Frostburg team scoreless from the field, but careless work of the defense allowed them three penalty shots which were made.

Cage opened with a field goal for the Boosters three minutes after the game started. Two minutes later Layman sank a penalty. Layman's second penalty shot and Andy Dunn's free kick concluded the scoring for the first half.

Midway in the second half the Boosters managed a rally which terminated with Widow's goal.

Hawse and Holshey sparked the losers, while Layman, Dunn and Finzel were the winner's best bets.

For FROSTBURG: ROOSTERS: Goal—Goldwin..... R. Hoyle RB..... Dunn..... Snodgrass LB..... Lee..... Gilmore RB..... Adams..... Hawse RB..... Layman..... Bradley LHB..... Robinson..... Watson ORF..... Chaney..... Thomas RB..... Lewis..... Perazzo CF..... W. Wehrbach..... Widows LF..... Finzel..... Cage OF..... Thomas..... Lisanti

Score:
Frostburg..... 3 0-2 Boosters..... 1 1-2
Subs: Frostburg—Hunt, Sacco, Goldworthy, Tipping, and Greco. Boosters—Early, Hooley, and Debrugge. Scoring field goals—Cage and Widows. Penalties: Layman (2). Goal from free kick: Dunn. Referee—Dick Kauffman. Time—45 minute halves.

Eckhart Wins by 9-2 Score over Mt. Savage
Eckhart defeated Mt. Savage 9-2 at Mt. Savage yesterday with Arnore scattering the nine hits he allowed and tightening up with men on the paths, while Porter, Minnick and Baker of Mt. Savage were nicked for 12 hits, three Savage errors aiding in the Eckhart scores.

Shriver with a homer and two singles; Edwards with two singles and a triple and Walters with three singles were the batting stars. Feldman and Shriver featured afield with Blank's sensational stab of Steele's labeled homer a highlight.

Old Exports Capture Tri-County Crown

Defeat Keyser 10-6 in Deciding Game of Series

Won Necessary Two Games of Three on Keyser's Home Field

Title Is First Won by Local Brewers in League History

Westport, Oct. 8.—The Cumberland Old Export baseball team captured the Tri-County League championship here this afternoon by trimming the Keyser (W. Va.) Reds 10-6 in the deciding tilt of a three-game series. The Exports, second-half loop winners, capped the first game of the playoff at Keyser two weeks ago and the Reds made possible a third game by turning back the Brewers at Cumberland's North End Playground last Sunday.

Yesterday's victory gave the Exports their first championship in the four years the Tri-County League has been in existence and was more or less a personal triumph for John Hafer in his first year as manager of the Brewers. Keyser was the defending champion, having won the title the last two seasons.

Exports Hit Timely

The Brewers combined timely hitting and alert fielding to bring home the bacon. Paced by big George Rice and Ray Thompson, the Brewers blasted two Red hurlers for fourteen safeties, four of them for extra bases. Rice singled and Thompson secured three safe knocks, one of them a two-bagger. Lou Riehl's accurate throwing and line-drive smacks that bordered on the sensational by Rice and "Chic" Cabbage helped protect the Brewers' lead which they held throughout the entire game. Riehl cut two Reds down at the plate on long throws, each time in the midst of a Keyser rally.

The losers found Derl Keller for twelve hits, but the Export hurler scattered them and succeeded in going the full route. Catcher McLena and shortstop Bob Tysinger were the Reds' top bombers with three hits apiece. Bud Mosser and Charles Conn each drove in a pair of Red runs.

Hoffman Driven from Box

The Brewers crammed their talons into four big innings, getting three in the second, four in the third, two in the fourth and one in the fifth.

Horsewhipping Adds Spice To Sports Writer's Life

By JOHN LARDNER
(Released by North American Newspaper Alliance)

Cincinnati, Oct. 8.—"What do you mean," writer Mervin J. Murgatroyd, hay, grain, and feed, "by saying that William E. Benswanger is no gentleman?"

"Retract your slurs on Bucky Walters' character," requests Elise J. Spitz, housewife, "or my husband will call on you with a horsewhip." It seems that your correspondent has been getting out of line lately, an oldish brings up the old problem (old, but ever fresh and real to us slander-mongers and traducers of reputation) of how to deal with people who call around with a horsewhip, like the husband of Elise J. Spitz, housewife. There is a loud knock on the door of my costly office suite right now. It may be Mr. Spitz himself, so we will have to work fast.

Policy of Nonchalance

In horsewhip cases, my policy is usually one of nonchalance. For instance, a bell will ring on the desk of my inner sanctum, and Miss Sweedie, head of the secretarial staff, will address me with considerable reverence.

"There is a man out here who says he is Montague Slugg," announces Miss Sweedie.

Naturally, it is the work of a moment for me to recall that I referred to Montague Slugg last Tuesday as a white rat. As to the justice of this claim, that is neither here nor there. Doubtless the man Slugg could prove by anatomical tests that he is not technically a white rat, but a fellow is entitled to a little poetic license in the writing game.

"Throw him out," I tell Miss Sweedie, who once pulled the stroke out for Wellesley, as well as the Nos. 7, 6, 5, and 4 oars. Then there is a crash, consisting of Montague Slugg, of Slugg Bros., landing on the sidewalk twenty floors below, and I sit back satisfied that I have shown I cannot be intimidated.

However, the matter does not always end there. Slugg may be stubborn and resourceful. As I remember this particular case, he pulled himself together in remarkably fast time. Half an hour later, a horsewhip flew through the window and landed in the middle of the floor of my office, closely followed by Slugg, of Slugg Bros. Apparently he was not going to let bygones be bygones. Contact with Miss Sweedie had failed to soothe him.

"Where is my horsewhip?" were his first words. "I threw it in here." "How did you happen to come through the window?" I asked him, sparring for time. "There is a reception desk outside my office at which visitors are welcomed cordially, one and all."

Soft Words Don't Deflect Wrath

"What do you want with a horsewhip?" I asked him patiently. "Do you drive a horse? I thought you had a convertible coupe."

Montague Slugg had located the horsewhip by now. Picking it up, he made a couple of practice passes at the water-cooler. Breaking it in two. Of all the characters who have called at my office to horsewhip me, none showed greater mastery of the weapon than Slugg. He had a great wrist, a good eye, and plenty of follow-through. A fellow who horsewhipped me in Rangoon in '97 was a little faster, perhaps, but he lacked Slugg's accuracy and control. I understand it is a matter of white action.

"You called me a white rat," said Slugg, getting down to the principal business of the meeting.

"Did I say 'white'?" I inquired, reaching for my notes. "Let me give you the color wrong."

By CHARLES DUNKLEY
Crosley Field, Cincinnati, Oct. 8 (AP) — Joseph Vincent McCarthy, kindly 51-year old leader of the New York Yankees, was the happiest man in the baseball world tonight.

Deacon Bill McKechie, boss of his vanquished royal Reds, was the saddest.

McCarthy, with just a trace of a tear in his eye, joined with the Yankees in the noisiest clubhouse victory celebration they have ever staged. He was supremely happy because his players had just presented him with a fourth world's championship and their ninth consecutive world's series victory.

First of the Yankee players to storm into the dressing room was shortstop Frank Crosetti, left fielder George Selkirk, and second baseman Joe Gordon.

Fletcher Leads Singing

Graying Art Fletcher, one of the coaches and McCarthy's first lieutenant, jumped on a trunk and broke out into the familiar song "The Sidewalks of New York."

All the players joined in, with McCarthy standing beside Fletcher. After the last words of the song sounded into the rafters Fletcher jumped from the trunk to McCarthy's back.

In walked William Harridge, president of the American League, extending his hand in congratulation. McCarthy beamed.

"Just think, Mr. Harridge," he said, "this is our ninth straight world series victory. It's our fourth world's championship. No other team ever has done that. No other team had even won three until we did it last year."

Asked if the series came out as he expected, McCarthy just grinned. "Anytime you beat a couple of pitchers like Derringer and Walters," he said, "you have a helluva tough job on your hands."

Suddenly McCarthy spied Joe Di Maggio, whose single to right in the ninth inning broke up the game.

"The old 'Dago' is OK," McCarthy said, "throwing his arms around the outfield star. 'We'll have plenty of spaghetti in San Francisco this winter.'"

Outsmarted W. Va. Mountaineers To Stow Panther Jinx

Look to Greener Fields after 20-0 Setback by Pitt Eleven

Associated Press Staff Writer

West Virginia University, outsmarted by a team of slashing opportunists at Pittsburgh, stowed the Panther jinx in mothballs for another year and looked today to greener fields.

The Mountaineers had little to save the sting of the 20-0 setback suffered in Panther Hollow, except perhaps the realization the season is young and the prospects still bright for a successful year.

Cincinnati University is West Virginia's next opponent on this week's schedule of state college games, few of which appear to hold particular significance.

The meeting, fourth contest between the two, will be played at Cincinnati Saturday in the only night game on the Mountaineer program. Cincinnati was overpowered by Dayton, 32 to 2, the past week-end.

Other Saturday results included the 64 to 0 lacing Marshall handed Salem at Huntington between two teams which didn't belong on the same field; Concord's 7 to 0 conquest of Potomac State, West Liberty's 20 to 0 rout of Holbrook, the defeat of Bethany, 30 to 7, by Glenville, and Shepherd's 13-0 victory over the U. S. Army Medical Corps at Carlisle, Pa.

In the other out-of-state game, Davis and Elkins fell before the Colonials of George Washington, 19 to 0.

Bethany leads off on the schedule for the week ahead, meeting the game Salem eleven which fell before Marshall, in a night game at Sistersville Thursday.

West Liberty and New River are also scheduled for night contests, the former meeting Glenville at New Martinsville while New River plays Rio Grande at Rio Grande, Ohio, on Friday.

Saturday's schedule includes the contest in which Marshall will meet the old Buckeye Conference foe, Miami, at Oxford, Ohio, and Morris Harvey plays West Virginia Wesleyan, defeated twice in its two starts this year, at Charleston. Morris Harvey has not been scored upon in three games to date.

The Team With Everything

Cincinnati, Ohio, Oct. 8.—You can enter the Yankees in your book as the team that has everything. They may or may not have everything in the same game. But they have everything to call on when it is needed to win an important game.

They have more than their share of power. They have four or five men who can break up a battle at any given moment.

They have one of the best defensive fielding clubs I've ever seen. They have an exceptionally strong pitching staff.

But that isn't all of it. I know most of them well. They have as fine a team spirit as I've ever seen on any college football team.

And they have more than their share of intelligence. If you travel with them you will know just what I mean. They are keen, smart and there isn't a tough mug or a surly guy in the lineup.

This is why I say this is one ball club that has everything—when it is needed.

I've seen other teams just as good physically. Maybe a few a trifle better. But these teams lacked the spirit and the mentality of this Yankee bunch.

They lacked one of their great elements—which you might call ball playing soul.

The Yankees got their reputation as being a team of power-ran power—a set of sluggers. This was far from being one fourth of it.

Sure they can hit—hit with any team at any time. But they don't have to hit to win. You'll never see another combination like Crosetti and Gordon. You'll never see a greater defensive infield than Rolfe, Crosetti, Gordon and Dahlgren.

The outfield can hit and field. This Yankee organization is something that reflects rarer credit on Joe McCarthy, who in his quiet way has assembled the type of athlete he wants around him. He has to be a right guy first. Joe starts from there. The Yankees are all right guys—and I know them all.

They happen to have exceptional abilities as ball players. But this is only a small part of their story. Just imagine a team able to win 27 out of its last 30 World Series games—against the opposition of a rival major league—a 900 pace. It doesn't make sense.

It wouldn't make sense if you didn't know the Yankees as I happen to know them—both on and off the field.

Dr. Heintz Has Big Day On Country Club Course

It was a big day in a double-header way for Dr. K. P. Heintz on the Cumberland Country Club golf course yesterday, for a veteran local linksman came away with two trophies to cap his season's play.

He won the handicap tournament staged Saturday and Sunday with a gross 76, handicap 11 for a net 65, then went on to defeat James Becham in the first flight of the consolation round of the fall tournament. He took that trophy to the tune of 4 and 3.

A feature innovated by Pro Carroll Boggs to add interest to the day's program was the awarding of prizes for the nearest approach to the first shot from tee to green on the seven three par holes on the course.

The winners were:

No. 1 Hole..... George Workmeister
No. 2 Hole..... James Becham
No. 3 Hole..... Morton Peskin
No. 4 Hole..... R. M. Hudak
No. 5 Hole..... R. M. Hudak
No. 6 Hole..... Cyril Craft
No. 7 Hole..... John Manley

Games Won by Educated Toes Of Grid Players

Several Maryland Victories Scored as Result of Extra Points

By WILLIAM NEEDHAM
Baltimore, Oct. 8. (AP)—Usually the glory goes to the fancy-stepping, swivel-hipped gents who get the touchdowns.

Today, there was glory to spare in Maryland for the boys with the educated toes, who turn sixes into sevens by booting 'em through the goal-posts.

If Punkin Wood hadn't made his two place-kick chances good for extra points yesterday, Navy wouldn't have beaten Virginia 14 to 12. If Husky Persh Mendoff—a one-man scoring spree—hadn't booted an extra point and a field goal, Maryland's 12-0 victory over Western Maryland would have looked far sorer than it did.

And if Washington College had collected the two points after touchdown it needed, the Shoremen would have beaten Swarthmore—instead of losing, 13 to 12.

On the other hand extra points couldn't have helped Blue Ridge much. The final score was Upsilon, 19; Blue Ridge, 0. In three games, the New Windsor team hasn't put over a touchdown.

Virginia Scores Navy

It's pretty well determined that Virginia gave the Midshipmen the scare of their nautical lives at Annapolis, and there are those who will say the Cavaliers outplayed the Tars. The scoreboard showed simply that Navy won by the bare margin of Wood's two extra-point placements.

Once again, Navy's second-string accounted for the touchdowns. Wes Gebert and Bob Leonard chalked 'em up while the varsity backs for whom they once were understudies warmed the bench.

Mondoff, the 190-pounder from Emmitsburg, who never played football before he came to Maryland, scored a touchdown, booted an extra point, kicked a field goal, and generally made himself a nuisance to Western Maryland last night.

Elder, Western Maryland quarterback, contributed Maryland's other two points when he bobbed a bad center pass behind his own goal and was snowed under for a safety.

Maryland's superior reserve strength turned the trick, but the trick itself was nothing to cheer about. Western Maryland made the Terrapin pass defense look foolish, once completing five straight heaves for a gain of nearly fifty yards.

Dartmouth Plays Navy

Washington college, opening its season, muffed two extra-point chances when one would have meant a tie, and two the game. The Shoremen went down fighting and unscathed a fourth-quarter drive to Swarthmore's six before they were stopped.

Blue Ridge found Upsilon lumbering but powerful, threatened once to the seven, but was to weak to make the grade.

Next Saturday's games, in light of yesterday's results, looked tough for all hands. Navy meets Dartmouth in Baltimore Stadium; Maryland travels to Virginia at Charlottesville; Western Maryland entertains Mt. St. Mary's at Westminster; Washington opens the Johns Hopkins season, and Blue Ridge meets Hofstra at Hempstead, L. I.

Of the lot, only Washington seems due for a reasonably pleasant afternoon.

Celanese Boosters Win Over Victor Hosiery

The Celanese defeated the Victor Hosiery team of Hagerstown in the Western Maryland Soccer League opened at Celanese field yesterday 5 to 2.

Both teams were scoreless for the first seven minutes when Gilbert of Hagerstown broke the ice with a field goal. Five minutes later Dale Broadwater evened it up with a penalty kick.

After another lapse of five minutes O'Rourke took a corner kick from McKenzie to score and two minutes later he took another from Stafford to count again. Five minutes before the half-time whistle John Darnley scored on a head shot to make the count 4-1 favor Celanese at the intermission.

The second half was only five minutes under way when Stafford booted a corner kick and Robert Orr headed the ball through for the local's final score. Midway of the final half Stollper booted a drive from 25 yards out to give the Hosierymen their second tally.

Sidelights on The World Series

By FRITZ HOWELL
Crosley Field, Cincinnati, Oct. 8 (AP) — Wrapping up the 1939 world series!

Joe McCarthy's Yankees, in winning four straight from the Reds, did it in about every way big league games can be won. They took the first with fine defensive play and a bit of late-inning hitting; the second with the most superb pitching exhibition the event has seen in years; the third with a blast of four home runs—and today's fourth and final contest was an outright gift from the Reds.

The cold facts show that the two pennant winners made twenty-seven hits each in the four games, but the powerful Yanks made theirs count for 54 bases, an average of two sacks per blow, while the Reds waited until the grand finale before getting an extra-baser. Their three doubles and a lone triple in today's game boosted their total to thirty-two bases.

Power of the Yanks was illustrated by the fact they turned their twenty-seven bingles into twenty runs, while the Reds got only eight with the same number of hits.

Today's result gave the rival managers two records. For Skipper McCarthy it was his fourth straight world's championship—and he and the Yanks are the only manager and team ever to turn in that grand slam.

On the other hand, it was "Deacon Bill" McKechie's eighth straight defeat in world series games—A new low. McKechie lost four in a row to the Yankees in 1928 with his pennant-winning St. Louis Cardinals.

Yankees Go to Town

Proceeding with their customary "give us an inch and we'll take a mile" the Yankees went to town right after Dimaggio went to town on George Selkirk's liner. Gordon hit to Billy Werber at short, who made the pickup and threw to the plate trying to get Dimaggio. Dimaggio slid in with a tying run as Ernie Lombardi popped Werber's low throw. It was a single for Gordon.

That inning should have been enough to happen to any club—but not the Reds. They really showed in the tenth. With one out, Frank Crosetti on second, Myers made his second miscue of the game by bobbing Keller's drive back of second.

Dimaggio shot a single into right. The ball got away from Ival Gooden, and the base-runners decided to pick them up and lay down. Crosetti came in and lay down. Campobello Eleven Too Classy for Quaker Foe at Stadium

Clarksburg, W. Va., Oct. 8 (P)—Pushing over a touchdown in the first quarter and then throwing up a strong defense to protect their goal, St. Mary's High Strippers turned back LaSalle High's eleven of Cumberland (Md.) here Saturday 7-0.

The visitors failed to make any serious scoring moves. Their attack on the ground was practically stopped at every turn. In the air they fared a little better.

The only score came when Pull-back Gonzalez dropped back and heaved a 15-yard pass to "Ducky" Tiano in the end zone. Gonzalez booted the extra point. First downs were six to three in favor of the Clarksburgers. The victory was the first in four starts this season for the locals.

Several Upsets Are Scored in Grid Contests

Some Leading Teams in, East, Mid-West and South Beaten

By BILL BONI

New York, Oct. 8 (P)—College football has gone through only two major week-end programs. Yet already advance estimates of gridiron strength have had to be revised sharply, and mostly downward, in every section of the country.

Holy Cross and Fordham, expected to march side-by-side to Eastern leadership, fell together. The Crusaders bowed to the extraordinary pass-catching and intercepting of Ken Kavanaugh, Louisiana State end, 26-7, and Fordham took a more decisive beating than the 7-6 score would indicate from Alabama's big line and cut-cutting backs.

In the Mid-West Northwestern and Minnesota dropped with the heaviest thuds. Oklahoma's Sooners bottled up the platoons of Northwestern backs, including Bill De Corvont, and made good on breaks to topple the Wildcats, 23-0, and Nebraska, after pounding a porous Minnesota line, cut loose with a trick play to edge out the Gophers, 6-0.

Tech Has Close Call

But there were other results to add to the confusion. Centre forced Army to come from behind and win, 9-6, on two blocked kicks, while Navy saved itself from a tie with Virginia only by blocking two extra-point kicks. That made it 14-12 for the Midshipmen.

Carnegie Tech's 6-0 close call with Temple, which was stopped on the 7-7 yard line in the final quarter; the 10-7 victory of a reputedly weak Yale team over Columbia, and the power which Cornell let loose in spurts to beat Syracuse, 19-6, further jumbled the eastern setup.

The Deep South nearly achieved another intersectional eye-popper when Georgia Tech's underrated Engineers stormed up from behind for a second touchdown against Notre Dame. But for the second week in a row the Irish won, 17-14, on a field goal, this one by Harry Stevenson. The Southwest did its best to make it a sorry day for the "Yankees" by sending Dana Bible's Texas Longhorns into Madison to whip Wisconsin, 17-7.

Arkansas Downs T. C. U.

Three other battles about rounded out the lineup of bewildering results. Texas Christian, voted the best in the country last year, dropped its second game, and first Southwest Conference start, by 14-13 to Arkansas, which had lost to Mississippi State a week ago, and Oregon State, the team that beat Stanford, had all it could do to hold off Idaho, 7-6.

Southern California, meanwhile, really cut loose to bury Washington State, 27-0, with even sixth-strikers figuring in a last-period scoring drive.

Meanwhile a number of the nation's teams were making good on early-season promise. On the Pacific Coast, U. C. L. A. and Oregon followed up handsome first-game showings, the Bruins by beating Washington, 14-7, on the all-around excellence of their two Negro halfbacks, Kenny Washington and Jack Robinson, and Oregon by downing Stanford, 10-0.

Duke and Tulane, favorites in the Southern and Southeastern Conferences, showed why. The Dukes' Wes and George McAfee helped pile up 207 yards along the ground in a 37-0 romp over Colgate, and Tulane, scoring in this series for the first time since 1934, ended a three-year run of scoreless ties by defeating Auburn, 12-0.

Pittsburgh, with Jock Sutherland watching an un-Sutherlandlike attack based on passes and deception, battered West Virginia, 20-0, Iowa's Nile Kinnick passed to three touchdowns, scored a fourth and booted two extra-point drop kicks in the day's widest game, a 32-29 decision over Indiana.

Kentucky Beats Vandy

Kentucky, paced by sophomore Ernie Allen, beat in-and-out Vanderbilt, 21-13, for the first time in their series; Ernie Lalin's passes to Speedy Moore brought Rice a 13-0 triumph over Centenary; "Sweet" LaLanne was hot in North Carolina's 13-6 conquest of gallant V.P. I. and Mississippi State beat Florida, 14-0, for its first conference victory.

St. Mary's, Ohio State, Tennessee and Pennsylvania were others who won as expected. The Gaeles took a bad punt on the California 38 to best the Golden Bears, 7-3, in a bitter battle that produced a fist fight; the Buckeyes had too much all-around power and too tight a pass defense for Missouri, which fell by 19-0. The Volunteers, who lack only a representative schedule to be a standard, ran over Sewanee, 40-0, and Penn topped Lafayette, 6-0 while gaining a wide statistical edge.

Michigan's Harmon, Kroner and Evashevski accounted for all the touchdowns in a 25-13 licking of Michigan State. Bryant and McPadden paced Clemson to a 25-6 score over North Carolina State. Kansas downed Iowa State, 14-0, in the first big six game of the year. In the east, Harvard and Princeton opened their campaign by beating Bates 20-0 and Williams 26-6, respectively; Penn State overcame 11 fumbles to best Bucknell, 13-3, and New York U. breezed by P. M. C., 43-0.

Saturday's Games

Next Saturday, main games in a big lineup will be:

In the East—Pitt-Duke, Princeton-Cornell, Yale-Penn, Columbia-

KELLER SCORES AS HE STARTS CLIMB TO BE SERIES HERO

Charlie Keller, native of Middletown, Maryland, and a product of the University of Maryland campus, is shown scoring on his first of two homers in the third game of the world series at Cincinnati Saturday. He had been the hero of the Yanks' first win and there was no question of his accounting for the turn in the tide then. It looked like Keller had grabbed more than his share of the laurels but "King Kong" was a big gun for the Yanks again yesterday in clinching the series with the Reds.

He was the batting hero of the series with seven hits in 16 official times at bat. His collection included three homers, three singles and a triple.

The Reds dropped the flip to the bag after scored and DiMaggio was out at second.

Yankees Go to Town
Proceeding with their customary plan of "give us an inch and we'll take a mile" the bombing squad of the Bronx went to town right after DiMaggio went to the pen.

On George Selkirk's liner, Gordon hit to Billy Werber at first, who made the pickup and led to the plate trying to get DiMaggio. DiMaggio slid in with a tying run as Ernie Lombardi tapped Werber's low throw. It was not a single for Gordon.

That inning should have been that to happen to any club—but the Reds. They really showed the folks in the tenth. With one out and Frank Crosetti on a second base walk and a sacrifice fly, Myers made his second miscue
the game by bobbling Keller's under back of a single.

DiMaggio shot a single into right field. The ball got away from Ival Goodman, and the base-runners needed to pick them up and lay down. Crosetti came in and rounded third and headed home. Goodman relayed to McCormick, who whirled and threw the plate, trying to get Keller.

Lombardi dropped the relay and across the base line. He lay down a few seconds, as the ball was about five feet from the plate. Since no one made an effort to get after it, DiMaggio, who by then had reached third, caught the enemy flat-footed by breaking home. Too late, Lombardi went to the ball and DiMaggio scored the run of the inning.

Then just to add the proper touch, Walters rushed in, took the ball from Lombardi, ran halfway to Yankee dugout to tag DiMaggio and then returned to argue with umpires that Joe had failed to tag the plate.

Else in the ball game paled
these somewhat delicious doings.

Derringer Blows Up
Derringer, loser of the opener, blown out as he would be the loser of this one. He retired the last four men and hurled six beautiful scoreless innings. Then he dropped a slow ball to Keller on a count to lead off the seventh.
Keller dropped it into the right field bleachers. Dickey watched one go by, and parked the next in the corner of the same box. The Reds came right back in the half, however, at the expense of young Sundra, who relieved the Hildebrand in the fifth.

This rally opened on an error by Rolf, that put Buck McCormick safe on first. Lombardi fancied a two-bagger in center, but old Al Simmons, the former American leaguer who took the left-field duties for the Redlanders in the fifth, shot a double almost to the scoreboard center. McCormick then scored Wally Berger's infield out.

Reds Take Lead
After Myers walked, Willard
Berger, second string catcher and product of the Yankees system before he landed with Cincinnati, came up to bat for Derringer, and dropped a Texas League hit in center to send home the first run. Bill Werber followed in a line single to right, to score
Berger and put the Reds ahead.

The National Leaguers made it two in the eighth, when Goodman tapped a two-bagger in center, and on Lombardi's slashing single trotted short. After that, they stratagemed in both the ninth and tenth but fumbled each time.

Butting hero of the series unsubtly was Keller, freshman excellence from the University of Maryland. In 16 official batting pitches, the dark, stocky slugger elected seven hits, including three home runs, a triple and three singles.

For the Reds, Buck McCormick hit six hits in 15 chances, and Lombardi, with five in 15, were the re-makers.

Today's game gate was $150,242.82, which $76,624.35 went into the Reds' pool. The total pool for the series was $280,117.84, of which the Yankees took $159,648.49 and the Reds $106,469.35.

Cumberland Eleven Makes Poor Showing on Of-

Clarksburg, Va., Oct. 8.—Pushing over a touchdown in the first quarter and then throwing up a strong defense to protect their goal, the St. Mary's High Strikers turned back LaSalle High's eleven of Cumberland (Md.) here Saturday 7-0.

The visitors failed to make any serious scoring moves. Their attack on the ground was practically stopped at every turn. In the air they fared a little better.

The only score came when Phil-back Gonzalez dropped back and heaved a 15-yard pass to "Ducky" Tiano in the end zone. Gonzalez booted the extra point. First downs were six to three in favor of the Clarksburgians. The victory was the first in four starts this season for the locals.

Several Upsets Are Scored in Grid Contests

Some Leading Teams in,
East, Mid-West and South Beaten

By BILL BONI
New York, Oct. 8 (AP)—College football has gone through only two major week-end programs. Yet already advance estimates of gridiron strength have had to be revised sharply, and mostly downward, in every section of the country.

Holy Cross and Fordham, expected to march side-by-side to Eastern leadership, fell together. The Crusaders bowed to the extraordinary pass-catching and intercepting of Ken Kavanaugh, Louisiana State end, 26-7, and Fordham took a more decisive beating than the 7-6 score would indicate from Alabama's big line and fast-cutting backs.

In the Mid-West Northwestern and Minnesota dropped with the heaviest thuds. Oklahoma's Sooners bottled up the platoons of Northwestern backs, including Bill De Correvont, and made good on breaks to topple the Wildcats, 23-0, and Nebraska, after pounding a porous Minnesota line cut loose with a trick play to edge out the Gophers, 6-0.

Tech Has Close Call
But there were other results to add to the confusion. Centred
Army to come from behind and win
9-6, on two blocked kicks, while Navy saved itself from a tie with Virginia only by blocking two extra-point kicks. That made it 14-12 for the Midshipmen.

Carnegie Tech's 6-0 close call with Temple, which was stopped on the 7-yard line in the final quarter;
the 10-7 victory of a reputedly weak Yale team over Columbia, and the power which Cornell let loose in aspirants to beat Syracuse, 19-6, further jumbled the eastern setup.

The Deep South nearly achieved another intersectional eye-popper when Georgia Tech's underrated Engineers stormed up from behind for a second touchdown against Noire Dame. But for the second week in a row the Irish won, 17-14, on a field goal, this one by Harry Stevenson. The Southwest did its best to make it a sorry day for the "Yankees" by sending Dana Bible's Texas Longhorns into Madison to whip Wisconsin, 17-7.

Arkansas Downs T. C. U.
Three other battles around rounded out the lineup of bewildering results. Texas Christian, voted the best in the country last year, dropped its second game, and first Southwest Conference start, by 14-13 to Arkansas, which had lost to Mississippi State a week ago, and Oregon State, the team that beat Stanford, had all it could do to hold off Idaho,
7-6.

Southern California, meanwhile, really cut loose to bury Washington
State, 27-0, with even sixth-stringers figuring in a last-period scoring drive.

Meanwhile a number of the nation's teams were making good on early-season promise. On the Pacific Coast, U. C. L. A. and Oregon followed up handsome first-game showings, the Bruins by beating Washington, 14-7, on the all-around excellence of their two Negro halfbacks, Kenny Washington and Jack Robinson, and Oregon by downing Stanford, 10-0.

Duke and Tulane, favorites in the Southern and Southeastern Conferences, showed why. The Dukes' Wes and George McAfee helped pile up 207 yards along the ground in a 27-0 romp over Colgate, and Tulane, scoring in this series for the first time since 1934, ended a three-year run of scoreless ties by defeating Auburn, 12-0.

Pittsburgh, with Jack Sutherland watching an un-Sutherland attack backed west Virginia, 20-0. Iowa's Nile Kinnick passed to three touchdowns, scored a fourth and booted two extra-point drop kicks in the day's wildest game, a 32-29 decision over Indiana.

Kentucky Beats Vandy
Kentucky, paced by sophomore Ernie Allen, beat in-and-out Vanderbilt, 21-13, for the first time in their series; Ernie Allen's passes to Speedy Moore brought fire a 13-0 triumph over Centenary; "Sweet" LaLaine was hot in North Carolina's 13-6 conquest of gallant V.P.
I. and Mississippi State beat Florida, 14-0, for its first conference victory.

St. Mary's, Ohio State, Tennessee and Pennsylvania were others who won as expected. The Gaels took a bad punt on the California 38 to beaten the Golden Bears, 7-3, in a bitter battle that produced a flat fight; the Buckeyes had too much all-around power and too tight a pass defense for Missouri, which fell by 19-0. The Volunteers, who lack only a representative schedule to be a

Dapper Bandit Robs Downtown Gas Station, Flees

Delivers Note Threatening To Kill Clerk

Many Persons Nearby Unaware Of Daring Crime

A young Beau Brummel bandit with a flare for writing notes last night boldly stuck up and robbed the Esso Gasoline station, Mechanic and Williams streets, in two minutes flat.

Surprised while cleaning up the washroom during a lull in business around 9 p. m., Station Attendant Earl Robinson, 28, forked over $30 in bills to the dapper bandit who held a blue-barreled automatic in his right hand.

The robber coolly pocketed the wad while traffic streamed past the well-lighted station and as a large crowd of theater-goers drank milkshakes at the dairy next door.

Gives Clerk Note

After pocketing the folding money and patting his pocket, the stick-up man handed Robinson a note with the terse command, "Read this."

Robinson's eyes flickered to the note. When he looked up the bandit had disappeared.

The gas station attendant started to dash out of the washroom, but stopped short when he saw another man watching him intently through a side window.

Another Bandit Watches

Gloating at the note the second time, Robinson read: "I am a very nervous type. Don't make any commotion unless you want to be a corpse. I have another man watching you."

Robinson then glanced at the side window again. The man who had been watching him was gone. The filing station attendant then said he called police.

This was the second stick-up at the Esso station in the last few months. The station was robbed of $145 on April 18, Robinson said.

Traffic Was Heavy

"It was about 9 o'clock," Robinson told a News reporter last night. "Traffic was pretty heavy and there had been lots of people around all evening. During a lull in business I stepped into the washroom to clean things up."

"I had just started to clean out the washbowl with a wet towel when I saw a man standing in the door."

"He said, 'All right, I want your money.' He was dressed fit to kill. I was so surprised I said 'You don't mean that, do you?'"

Robinson said the bandit then replied crisply, "I mean it," and held the automatic a trifle closer to prove it.

Clerk Keeps Some Money

"I reached in my left pocket and gave him a roll of bills. There was a twenty, a five and a two and three ones. I had two more fives in my inside pocket and a pocketful of change in my right overall pocket. He didn't get that or the two fives."

Robinson described the bandit as "looking as if he just came out of a bandbox."

The station attendant said the man was apparently about 25, around five feet eleven inches tall, and weighing about 140 pounds.

Smooth Looking

"He had on a dark suit, had blond hair, and was wearing no hat," Robinson recalled. "He was a smooth looking bird—even had a handkerchief in his breast pocket."

Detective Robert E. Flynn and Officers W. B. Lovenstein, T. T. Griffin, F. J. Zawaski and John Powers congregated at the filling station a couple minutes after Robinson's call had been received by Desk Sgt. Bert B. Browne at headquarters.

Police Block Roads

The officers quickly blocked off the surrounding area but the young stick-up man and his alleged compatriot had slipped away.

Robinson asserted he thought they made their getaway in a Maryland car, but was a little vague on this point.

An officer reported that the note was written on the back of a salt advertisement.

Robinson said he had never seen either the gunman or the "man in the window" until last night.

Grand Jury Hits Bingo Racket, Wants All Profits for Charity

Forty-five indictments were returned by the October term grand jury Saturday in Circuit court along with a recommendation that the act permitting bingo games for charity be revised.

Stating that Allegheny county's law permitting bingo is being abused, the grand jury recommended that the act be revised so that the entire net profits of the games be retained by the charity groups, fraternal organizations and churches that sponsor them.

Want Larceny Curbed

The grand jury also urged that steps be taken to curb larceny cases involving young people.

The report was received by Associate Judge William A. Huxter who thanked the jurors for their public service.

The complete report of the jury, signed by the foreman, Joseph B. Finan; G. Keas Hosken, Benjamin H. McCracken and Albert Beck follows:

Examined 120 Witnesses

To the honorable, the judges of the Circuit Court for Allegheny County, Maryland:

The Grand Jury of the State of Maryland, for the body of Allegheny County, for the October term of Court, in the year 1939, having completed the work assigned to it to the best of its ability, desires to report as follows:

First: We have been in session six days, have examined 120 witnesses and returned 45 indictments.

(The second and third sections of the report approved conditions at the county home, the county insane asylum, and the county jail. The fourth section called attention to the fact that some court house clerks and accountants are working in a vault room not properly ventilated. Other arrangements were suggested "if reasonably possible.")

Fifth: A Committee of Jurors was appointed to inspect the books of the County Treasurer, as directed by the Court. This Committee made the following report to the Grand Jury:

"We, the commission duly appointed by you to inspect the books of the Allegheny County Treasurer, do hereby inform you the work has been completed. To the best of our knowledge, we found the books to be in excellent condition. We are submitting to you a pamphlet of bonded Debt, Report of Finances and Annual Levy List, which was handed to us by the County Treasurer. In comparing the three pamphlets with the books, we found them to be identical. Hoping the inspection will meet with your approval, we are

Sincerely yours, Committee
(Signed)
Alvin R. Serf,
Arthur H. Amick, Jr.,
Joseph H. Glick."

Bonded Debt Shown

The pamphlet referred to above shows the total bonded debt of the County is $3,083,000.00. Of this total, $2,735,000.00 is for school bonds; $70,000.00 is for hospital bonds, and $278,000.00 is for road bonds. The road bonds are being retired by receipts from the gasoline tax accruing to Allegheny County.

Sixth: The work of this Grand Jury has been much expedited by the thorough investigations made into numerous criminal charges by the State's Attorney, Morgan C. Harris, and the County Investigator, Terrence J. Boyle. The zeal of the State's Attorney and County Investigator in making speedy, intelligent probes and keeping complete records of hearings in cases of alleged criminality is of inestimable value in apprehending criminals and bringing them into Court to answer for their misdeeds, according to law. It is the opinion of the Grand Jury that the energy and zeal of these officers has much to do with curtailing criminality in Allegheny County.

Seventh: As will be seen by the list of indictments returned a considerable portion of the criminality in Allegheny County involves the crime of larceny. Most of these larceny cases involve the stealing of various articles, commonly known as junk. The stealing in most cases is by youths, who have no difficulty in selling their ill-gotten material to persons known as Junk Dealers. The Grand Jury believes it would be a wholesome thing for the State to have a law making it necessary for any person offering to sell junk to have a permit to sell from the Chief of Police of a city or some other public authority, before the sale and purchase could be legally consummated, with reasonable penalties to be imposed upon any junk dealer or other person, who may be found guilty of purchasing junk from anyone not having a proper permit to sell. It is the suggestion of the Grand Jury that the State's Attorney have a bill prepared to cover the subject, and present copies of the bill to representatives of Allegheny County in the Maryland Legislature, with the request that it be presented at the next session of the Legislature and that its passage be requested.

Urges Law Revision

Eighth: The Grand Jury recommends that the law permitting bingo games to be conducted in Allegheny County for charity be revised so that it will be unlawful to conduct these games for profit to anyone other than the charity groups, fraternal organizations or churches that sponsor them. Complaints reached this body that bingo games were being conducted in numerous cases in some of which large sums of money were involved. Inquiry developed the information that in some cases these games are operated on a percentage basis, only a portion of the profits going to charity.

Ninth: The State Mine Inspector was before the Jury and reported that the laws governing mining are being well observed throughout the County, and he had no violations to report. The fatal accident at West-ernport on Tuesday was the first fatality in the mines of Allegheny County in 1939.

The State Accident Commission Investigator, Mr. Bernard Byrnes, was before the Jury and testified that his investigations disclosed that several operators of small mines did not carry compensation insurance for their employees, as required by law. The Grand Jury has returned indictments in these cases. Having completed its work and performed its duties to the best of its ability, the Grand Jury respectfully asks to be discharged.

Street Light Broken, Footballer in Court

An 18-year-old football fan was given a suspended fine of $1 Saturday in Police court on a charge of playing football in the street.

Leroy Saville, of 402 Grand avenue, was apprehended Friday night in South Cumberland by Officers W. P. Crabtree and F. J. Zawaski after he broke a street light.

Saville paid the Potomac Edison Company for the damage done, it was said.

W. D. Paisley, Civic Leader, Dies at 76

Was Pioneer Here In Accounting Field; Active in Church

William Donald Paisley, Cumberland civic leader, died yesterday at Memorial Hospital. He was 76.

Mr. Paisley was born in Baltimore and was brought to Cumberland at the age of three by his parents, the late Donald and Eliza Jane (Collins) Paisley. His father came to this country from the town of Paisley, Scotland, and established the Paisley Dye Works in Baltimore and in Cumberland.

In Cumberland, the company was established on Liberty street and was the forerunner of the Footer Dye Works.

Mr. Paisley was educated at the public schools and Allegheny County Academy in Cumberland. As a young man he first entered the employ of the Second National Bank under the presidency of the late Lloyd Lowndes and later was appointed State Bank Examiner.

He was a pioneer among the public accountants in this county having maintained offices in Cumberland for years. He was widely known for his extreme accuracy and ability in this field of work and was actively engaged in same until the time of his death.

In politics Mr. Paisley was a Republican. He never held a public office of any kind, but was greatly interested in affairs of his party. In his early manhood he took active interest in civic affairs and with his friend, the late J. Henry Holzshu, was active in organizing the Association of Commerce, which now would correspond to the Chamber of Commerce. In his youth he joined Company "A" Maryland National Guard.

He was a member of St. Patrick's Church and The Holy Name Society of that parish. He was always keenly interested in music and had been a member of St. Patrick's Mixed Choir for thirty years and directed the Men's Tenebrae Choir for 25 years.

He was a member of The Knights of Columbus, having been elected grand knight for three terms.

He married the former Miss Agnes Ways, daughter of the late George and Catherine Ways, pioneer citizens of Cumberland. His wife died 21 years ago. He is survived by the following children: Helen, wife of Colonel Allen G. Wright, of San Francisco, California; William, associated in business with his father; Vera, at home and Louise and Carroll Wright, grandchildren.

His home was at 205 Greene street.

Celanese Worker Hurt in Shower

A 39-year-old Celanese employee was admitted to Allegheny hospital yesterday afternoon after being injured at the plant.

John Shearer, of 308 Pennsylvania avenue, suffered an injured back and bruises when he slipped while taking a shower bath, hospital attaches said.

Shearer's condition was reported "fairly good" last night.

Saturday, Vincent Carpentieri, eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter V. Carpentieri, 307 North Centre street, was treated at the hospital after being bitten by a dog near his home. He was released.

William Thorpe, 13 son of Mrs. Uteika Thorpe, 202 Spring street, sustained an injured left shoulder when he fell from a tree Saturday afternoon. He returned home after being treated.

Deaths

Mrs. William Smith

Mrs. Anna L. Smith, wife of William Smith, of Petersburg, W. Va., died yesterday morning at Memorial Hospital where she was admitted Oct. 2. She was 69.

The body was taken to Petersburg.

Mrs. Sylvester Shoemaker

Mrs. Missouri Shoemaker, wife of Sylvester Shoemaker, of Meyersdale, Pa., died Saturday morning at Memorial Hospital where she had been a patient since Sept. 1. She was 66.

The body was taken to Meyersdale.

John M. Stickley

John M. Stickley, formerly of Cumberland, died Friday in Cleveland, Ohio. He was 60.

Mr. Stickley was a native of West Virginia. He was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. M. S. Stickley. He resided in Cumberland until eleven years ago.

Mr. Stickley was formerly an engineer on the B&O. He was a member of the Knights of Malta and of the Woodmen of the World.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Bertha E. Stickley; two sons, Clarence L. and Paul C. Stickley; a daughter, Mrs. Hazel B. Self; four sisters, Mrs. L. J. Hansotte, Mrs. George Gross, and Miss Grace Stickley, all of Cumberland, and Mrs. Daisy Apple, of Baltimore; a brother, James Stickley, of Swanton; and four grandchildren.

The body was brought to Cumberland yesterday to the home of Mrs. Self, 1011 LaFayette avenue.

on High Roads Low Roads and By-Ways

In case you are still wondering how that Lazarus stocking derby came out, here are the mileage records of the four longest steppers (sorry we don't have a photo finish to show you):

Miss Martha Kendall, drug store clerk, tripped merrily along for 195.75 miles in the two weeks the contest lasted.

Mrs. M. Reinhart, clerk in the Lazarus store, was ankle deep in first place by only a few miles. She came second to Miss Kendall with 176.5 miles. Mrs. Betty Bennett, restaurant operator, was third with 129 miles, and Miss Kay Carpenter, gossip reporter, was fourth with 128 miles.

We've heard of clothes horses, but it would be too punny to say that these winners were some hose horses.

Nonchalance or sang-froid in public officials is often refreshing. Take the case of Sheriff Radcliffe and Commissioner Simeon Green, who was deputized to help the sheriff bring a prisoner back from New York.

These ambassadors of law and order in Allegheny county arrived in the big city Thursday only to find that their prisoner, unbeknown to them, had made bond in New York and had surrendered at the county bastille here only two hours after they left for Manhattan.

Maybe the officers were non-plussed for a moment. But there was no crying over spilled milk for them. They simply went to the World's series.

(Meanwhile, fraud charges against their "prisoner" had been dropped here. So evidently the only ones who lost were the Cincinnati Reds.)

Judged from most aspects, mountain climbing is a perilous profession. Or at least it always seemed so to us. At best it appears about as uncertain as a dangling participle.

Not that we don't have a certain amount of verve when it comes to scaling high places, of course. Only yesterday, for example, we scaled Caudy's Castle in West Virginia. While not exactly a peak, Caudy's Castle nevertheless has its trying points.

We are referring more specifically to such lads as 22-year-old Carl Flanagan, of Ridgeley, whose recent scaling of Long's Peak makes our daring conquest of Caudy's Castle look like a hushed-up understatement.

Climbing Old Long's isn't exactly a lark. To begin with it is 14,255 feet high. (Caudy's Castle is somewhat less.) Much of the 14,255 feet is perpendicular. We imagine if anyone should invite us to a clam bake on top of Long's Peak it would be safe to say that we wouldn't show up.

To climb Long's Peak, a smart person first purchases a good stout rope. He then hitches one end of the rope to a mountain conqueror with an established reputation and a batting average of 1.000 and no failures. Having tied one end of the rope around the established climber, knotting same securely, one ties the other end around himself and then kneels in prayer.

This is precisely what Climb Flanagan did. He tied one end of his rope around no less a personage than J. H. Hoekzema, whose international climbing exploits have been termed more goatie than the sure-footed original Grandpa Billy Whiskers.

Flanagan's ascent dangled on for a total of some seventeen hours with both climbers see-sawing back and forth until they eventually puffed over the top.

And having reached the top, we would like to inquire what difference does it make other than the fact that both climbers were for the moment in comparative safety. What great victory wells up in the climber that made it necessary for his stomach to well up in his throat a dozen or so times on the way up?

We have often heard that once an individual is placed in the vicinity of a possible conquest that he is greatly ill at ease until the conquest is made. We have even heard that mountains actually leer at many climbers until the climber knocks them off.

Perhaps that is the way with Climb Flanagan. At any event three summers ago he was placed in the shadow of a holy terror of a mountain when he went out to Rocky Mountain National Park to work right underneath leering Long's Peak. He went as a ranger in the park and his hangings took him eventually to the top of the mountain.

However, this leering business sounds a trifle over-exaggerated. For instance, Caudy's Castle didn't leer at us yesterday so far as we could see. We could take it or leave it alone. It hurried no notice.

Alonzo J. Cope, Band Director 17 Years, Dies

Known to Thousands As Orchestra Leader At Maryland Theater

Alonzo J. Cope, who led the Maryland theatre orchestra for seventeen years in the days when music was real instead of canned, died late yesterday afternoon in Memorial hospital.

Mr. Cope, well-known to thousands because of his long musical career here, had been in the hospital for three days after suffering a heart attack. He was 54.

During the past five years Mr. Cope was with the German Brewing Company as shipping clerk. His home was at 156 North Mechanic street.

Mr. Cope came from a family of musicians and was a skilled pianist as well as orchestra leader. He was a native of Williamsport, Pa., the son of Samuel and Carrie Mullen Cope.

He was active in Masonic circles, being a member of Potomac Lodge, the Royal Arch Commandry, and McKinley Chapter No. 12, of the Eastern Star. He was also a member of the Fraternal Order of Eagles. He was a communicant of the Episcopal church.

Surviving are his wife, Emma Furlong Cope; one son, John Edward Cope, of Washington; and a brother, Charles E. Cope, of Cumberland.

The body will be taken to the home today. Funeral arrangements will be made by Stein's.

able challenge. It just seemed to be a lofty, but placid, bunch of rocks which would make a swell perch for an eagle.

The leers of our country's leading rockpiles, we fear, are for those more mystical than we are.

However, we once read of a person apparently no more mystical than we who climbed the Matterhorn to avail himself of the opportunity of attaining his heart's desire.

This very unmythical-like mountain climber had always had an ambition "to spit a mile." And he did.

But we must get back to the subject. Having left Climb Flanagan and his friend on top of Long's Peak we will have to get them down.

It is much easier to come down than go up. A number of Long's Peak climbers have come all the way down without stopping once. However, this procedure is not endorsed by the accepted authorities. It reputedly gives the climber the earache.

However, Climb Flanagan is now safely down off the mountain and has once again resumed the perusal of his senior studies at the University of West Virginia.

His father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Flanagan, Ridgeley, both say they aren't very familiar with their son's climbing expeditions, which is possibly just as well.

Next year, Climb Flanagan hopes to scale Mt. Whitney, the highest peak in the United States.

Youths, 21, Who Used Chewing Gum To Rob Church Poor Box Jailed

A few scattered rays of light filtered through the stained glass windows of St. Peter and Paul's Church late Friday afternoon as two silent figures slipped in and softly closed the door.

The slanting light beams, fading rapidly, gave the pensive interior of the church a subdued appearance. The frescoed walls, the old-style German architecture, and the high ceiling were partially obscured by lengthening shadows.

A splash of light fell on the serene statue of Christ visible by the altar.

The "Slip Into Church"

The two figures who slipped so silently into the otherwise unoccupied church were each about twenty-one years old. Both were chewing gum. One of them, as they padded catlike to one of the church poor boxes,

Standing by the poor box, the receptacle for small coins donated for the charitable work of the church, each youth reached inside his coat pocket and drew out a stick.

After a furtive glance or two in the direction of the church door, both youths rolled their gum up in balls, and affixed it to the ends of their sticks.

They slipped the sticks through the slot in the poor box and commenced the tedious work of drawing out dimes and nickels.

The pair looted one box and then started work on another. When both had been cleaned out the pair sneaked to the door and quickly ducked out of sight.

Cumberland Men Hurt When Car Turns Over

Two Watches Stolen From Broken Window

City police last night said they had no developments concerning the theft of two watches, valued at $25 each, early Saturday morning from the window in a jewelry store owned by John A. Niernman, Pershing street.

Officer George W. Deffenbaugh, who patrols the downtown Cumberland beat, discovered the jewelry store window broken about 6 a. m. One man's and one woman's watch were taken, it was reported.

The window, broken by a large stone, was intact when Officer Deffenbaugh passed the store at 5 a. m. The watches were taken between 5 and 6 a. m., it was reported.

Teacher's Drunk Driving Case Is Dismissed

Charles Town Man Says Injury Made Him Stagger

Drunken and reckless driving charges against a Charles Town, W. Va., high school teacher were dismissed Saturday in Trial Magistrate's court because doubt prevailed as to whether the defendant was guilty of either count.

The accused, Jonathan J. Baker, was arrested late on the night of Sept. 30, after his car allegedly got out of control and crashed into a telephone pole on the tricky curve at Wineow and Williams streets.

Officer John G. Powers, one of the arresting policemen, testified he detected a strong odor on Baker's breath, but said it didn't smell like alcohol. However, he added, Baker staggered and was in a dazed condition at the scene of the accident.

Says His Head Injured

Baker told Magistrate Frank A. Perdue he apparently sustained a concussion when his head struck the steering wheel of his car. He said he didn't remember anything from the time the mishap took place until he arrived at police headquarters.

Officer James E. Kelley, who also made the arrest, did not testify. He was in Baltimore with the Cumberland police department pistol team.

Reckless Driver Fined

Another driver, Charles C. Smith, 635 Oldtown road, was fined $5 and costs after he pleaded guilty to a charge of reckless driving.

Smith was taken into custody Sept. 4 by State Trooper B. C. Mason after the truck he was operating, going from Cumberland, collided with a motorcycle on Long Hill, about a mile beyond the city limits.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin J. Bohn, traveling from Hagerstown, were riding the motorcycle. The machine was badly damaged, and both were injured.

Accident Occurs After They Leave Dixie Inn

Three Cumberland men were injured late yesterday afternoon when their car was forced off the road by an unidentified driver near the Dixie Inn on the Fort Ashby road. Two were critically injured.

Paul Cordy, 40, of Brookfield, a depressed skull fracture, fractured right arm and several ribs, a crushed chest and cuts about the head.

Sampson L. Tennent, 41, of Virginia avenue, a fractured skull, broken right collarbone, fractured right leg and arm and cuts about the head.

Driver Least Hurt

Driver of the car, Charles Holtzman, 27, of 450 Arch street, suffered a laceration near his right eye and several broken ribs.

"We had just left Dixie Inn and were riding along talking when of a sudden a car came at us. That's about all I remember. I came to," Holtzman said.

Bonded Debt Shown

The pamphlet referred to above shows the total bonded debt of the County is $3,985,000.00. Of this total, $2,735,000.00 is for school bonds; $700,000.00 is for hospital bonds; $250,000.00 is for road bonds. The road bonds are being retired by receipts from the gasoline tax accruing to Allegany County.

W. D. Paisley, Civic Leader, Dies at 76

Was Pioneer Here In Accounting Field; Active in Church

William Donald Paisley, Cumberland civic leader, died yesterday at Memorial Hospital. He was 76.

Mr. Paisley was born in Baltimore and was brought to Cumberland at the age of three by his parents, the late Donald and Eliza Jane (Collins) Paisley. His father came to this country from the town of Paisley, Scotland, and established the Paisley Dye Works in Baltimore and in Cumberland.

In Cumberland, the company was established on Liberty street and was the forerunner of the Footer Dye Works.

Mr. Paisley was educated at the public schools and Allegany County Academy in Cumberland. As a young man he first entered the employ of the Second National Bank under the presidency of the late Lloyd Lowndes and later was appointed State Bank Examiner.

He was a pioneer among the public accountants in this county having maintained offices in Cumberland for years. He was widely known for his extreme accuracy and ability in this field of work and was actively engaged in same until the time of his death.

In politics Mr. Paisley was a Republican. He never held a public office of any kind, but was greatly interested in affairs of his party. In his early manhood he took active interest in civic affairs and with his friend, the late J. Henry Holtz, was active in organizing the Association of Commerce, which now would correspond to the Chamber of Commerce. In his youth he joined Company "A" Maryland National Guard.

He was a member of St. Patrick's Church and The Holy Name Society of that parish. He was always keenly interested in music and had been a member of St. Patrick's Mixed Choir for thirty years and directed the Men's Tenor Choir for 25 years.

He was a member of The Knights of Columbus, having been elected grand knight for three terms.

He married the former, Miss Agnes Ways, daughter of the late George and Catherine Ways, pioneer citizens of Cumberland. His wife died 21 years ago. He is survived by the following children: Helen, wife of Colonel Allen G. Wright, of San Francisco, California; William, associated in business with his father; Vera, at home and Louise and Carroll Wright, grandchildren.

His home was at 205 Greene street.

Celanese Worker Hurt in Shower

A 39-year-old Celanese employee was admitted to Allegany hospital yesterday afternoon after being injured at the plant.

John Shearer, of 308 Pennsylvania avenue, suffered an injured back and bruises when he slipped while taking a shower bath, hospital attaches said.

Shearer's condition was reported "fairly good" last night.

Saturday, Vincent Carpentieri, eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter V. Carpentieri, 307 North Centre street, was treated at the hospital after being bitten by a dog near his home. He was released.

William Thorpe, 13, son of Mrs. Uteika Thorpe, 202 Spring street, sustained an injured left shoulder when he fell from a tree Saturday afternoon. He returned home after being treated.

Deaths

Mrs. William Smith

Mrs. Anna L. Smith, wife of William Smith, of Petersburg, W. Va., died yesterday morning at Memorial hospital where she was admitted Oct. 2. She was 69.

The body was taken to Petersburg.

Mrs. Sylvester Shoemaker

Mrs. Missouri Shoemaker, wife of Sylvester Shoemaker, of Meyersdale, Pa., died Saturday morning at Memorial hospital where she had been a patient since Sept. 1. She was 66.

The body was taken to Meyersdale.

John M. Stickley

John M. Stickley, formerly of Cumberland, died Friday in Cleveland, Ohio. He was 60.

Mr. Stickley was a native of West Virginia. He was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. M. S. Stickley. He resided in Cumberland until eleven years ago.

Mr. Stickley was formerly an engineer on the B&O. He was a member of the Knights of Malta and of the Woodmen of the World.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Bertha E. Stickley; two sons, Clarence L. and Paul C. Stickley; a daughter, Mrs. Hazel B. Self; four sisters, Mrs. L. J. Hansotte, Mrs. George Gross, and Miss Grace Stickley, all of Cumberland; and Mrs. Daisy Apple, of Baltimore; a brother, James Stickley, of Swanton; and four grandchildren.

The body was brought to Cumberland yesterday to the home of Mrs. Self, 1011 LaPayette avenue.

on High Roads Low Roads and By-Ways

In case you are still wondering how that Lazarus stocking derby came out, here are the mileage records of the four longest steppers (sorry we don't have a photo finish to show you):

Miss Martha Kendall, drug store clerk, tripped merrily along for 195.75 miles in the two weeks the contest lasted.

Mrs. M. Reinhart, clerk in the Lazarus store, was ankle out of first place by only a few miles. She came second to Miss Kendall with 176.5 miles. Mrs. Betty Bennett, restaurant operator, was third with 129 miles, and Miss Kay Carpenter, gossip reporter, was fourth with 128 miles.

We've heard of clothes horses, but it would be too punny to say that these winners were some hose horses.

Nonchalance or sang-froid in public officials is often refreshing. Take the case of Sheriff Radcliffe and Commissioner Simeon Green, who was deputized to help the sheriff bring a prisoner back from New York.

These ambassadors of law and order in Allegany county arrived in the big city Thursday only to find that their prisoner, unbeknownst to them, had made bond in New York and had surrendered at the county jail here only two hours after they left for Manhattan.

Maybe the officers were non-plussed for a moment. But there was no crying over spilt milk for them. They simply went to the world's series.

Meanwhile, Frank charges against their "prisoner" had been dropped here. So evidently the only ones who lost were the Cincinnati Reds.)

Judged from most aspects, mountain climbing is a perilous profession. Or at least it always seemed so to us. At best it appears about as uncertain as a dangling participle.

Not that we don't have a certain amount of verve when it comes to scaling high places, of course. Only yesterday, for example, we scaled Caudy's Castle in West Virginia. While not exactly a peak, Caudy's Castle nevertheless has its trying points.

We are referring more specifically to such lads as 22-year-old Carl Flanagan, of Ridgeley, whose recent scaling of Long's Peak makes our daring conquest of Caudy's Castle look like a hushed-up understatement.

Climbing Old Long's isn't exactly a lark. To begin with it is 14,255 feet high. (Caudy's Castle is somewhat less.) Much of the 14,255 feet is perpendicular. We imagine if anyone should invite us to a clam bake on top of Long's Peak it would be safe to say that we wouldn't show up.

To climb Long's Peak, a smart person first purchases a good stout rope. He then hitches one end of the rope to a mountain conqueror with an established reputation and a batting average of 1.000 and no failures. Having tied one end of the rope around the established climber, knotting same securely, one ties the other end around himself and then kneels in prayer.

This is precisely what Climbier Flanagan did. He tied one end of his rope around no less a personage than J. H. Hoekzema, whose international climbing exploits have been termed more goatlike than the sure-footed original Grandpa Billy Whiskers.

Flanagan's ascent dangled on for a total of some seven hours with both climbers see-sawing back and forth until they eventually puffed over the top.

And having reached the top, we would like to inquire what difference does it make other than the fact that both climbers were for the moment in comparative safety. What great victory wells up in the climber that made it necessary for his stomach to well up in his throat a dozen or so times on the way up?

We have often heard that once an individual is placed in the vicinity of a possible conquest that he is greatly ill at ease until the conquest is made. We have even heard that mountains actually leer at many climbers until the climber knocks them off.

Perhaps that is the way with Climbier Flanagan. At any event three summers ago he was placed in the shadow of a holy terror of a mountain when he went out to Rocky Mountain National Park to work right underneath leering Long's Peak. He went as a ranger in the park and his hangings took him eventually to the top of the mountain.

However, this leering business sounds a trifle over-exaggerated. For instance, Caudy's Castle didn't leer at us yesterday so far as we could see. We could take it or leave it alone. It hurried no notice-

Alonzo J. Cope, Band Director 17 Years, Dies

Known to Thousands As Orchestra Leader At Maryland Theater

Alonzo J. Cope, who led the Maryland theatre orchestra for seventeen years in the days when music was real instead of canned, died late yesterday afternoon in Memorial hospital.

Mr. Cope, well-known to thousands because of his long musical career here, had been in the hospital for three days after suffering a heart attack. He was 54.

During the past five years Mr. Cope was with the German Brewing Company as shipping clerk. His home was at 156 North Mechanic street.

Mr. Cope came from a family of musicians, and was a skilled pianist as well as orchestra leader. He was a native of Williamsport, Pa., the son of Samuel and Carrie Mullen Cope.

He was active in Masonic circles, being a member of Potomac Lodge, the Royal Arch Commandry, and McKinley Chapter No. 12, of the Eastern Star. He was also a member of the Fraternal Order of Eagles. He was a communicant of the Episcopal church.

Surviving are his wife, Emma Furlong Cope; one son, John Edward Cope, of Washington; and a brother, Charles E. Cope, of Cumberland.

The body will be taken to the home today. Funeral arrangements will be made by Steins.

able challenge. It just seemed to be a lofty, but placid, bunch of rocks which would make a swell perch for an eagle.

The leers of our country's leading rockpiles, we fear, are for those more mystical than we are.

This very unmythic-like mountain climber had always had an ambition "to spit a mile." And he did.

But we must get back to the subject. Having left Climbier Flanagan and his friend on top of Long's Peak we will have to get them down.

It is much easier to come down than go up. A number of Long's Peak climbers have come all the way down without stopping once. However, this procedure is not endorsed by the accepted authorities. It reputedly gives the climber the earache.

However, Climbier Flanagan is now safely down off the mountain and has once again resumed the perusal of his senior studies at the University of West Virginia.

His father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Flanagan, Ridgeley, both say they aren't very familiar with their son's climbing expeditions, which is possibly just as well.

Next year, Climbier Flanagan hopes to scale Mt. Whitney, the highest peak in the United States.

Slip Into Church

The two figures who slipped so silently into the otherwise unoccupied church were each about twenty-one years old. Both were chewing gum. Neither spoke as they padded catlike to one of the church poor boxes.

Standing by the poor box, the receptacle for small coins donated for the charitable work of the church, each youth reached inside his coat pocket and drew out a stick.

Chewing Gum

After a furtive glance or two in the direction of the church door both youths rolled their gum up in balls, and affixed it to the ends of their sticks.

They slipped the sticks through the slot in the poor box and commenced the tedious work of drawing out dimes and nickels.

The pair looted one box and then started work on another. When both had been cleaned out the pair sneaked to the door and quickly ducked out of sight.

They admitted robbing the poor boxes on Friday; admitted coming back for more the next day; but denied having ever robbed a church prior to Saturday.

Today, Woodrow Leslie, 21, Bedford street; and Hugh White, 21, Hanover street, were being held pending a hearing in Trial Magistrate's court.

Two Watches Stolen From Broken Window

City police last night said they had no developments concerning the theft of two watches, valued at $25 each, early Saturday morning from the window in a jewelry store owned by John A. Niernman, Pershing street.

Officer George W. Deffenbaugh, who patrols the downtown Cumberland beat, discovered the jewelry store window broken about 6 a. m. One man's and one woman's watch were taken, it was reported.

The window, broken by a large stone, was intact when Officer Deffenbaugh passed the store at 5 a. m. The watches were taken between 5 and 6 a. m., it was reported.

Teacher's Drunk Driving Case Is Dismissed

Charles Town Man Says Injury Made Him Stagger

Drunk and reckless driving charges against a Charles Town, W. Va., high school teacher were dismissed Saturday in Trial Magistrate's court because doubt prevailed as to whether the defendant was guilty of either count.

The accused, Jonathan J. Baker, was arrested late on the night of Sept. 30, after his car allegedly got out of control and crashed into a telephone pole on the tricky curve at Wineoak and Williams streets.

Officer John G. Powers, one of the arresting policemen, testified he detected a strong odor on Baker's breath, but said it didn't smell like alcohol. However, he added, Baker staggered and was in a dazed condition at the scene of the accident.

Says His Head Injured

Baker told Magistrate Frank A. Perdue he apparently sustained a concussion when his head struck the steering wheel of his car. He said he didn't remember anything from the time the mishap took place until he arrived at police headquarters.

Officer James E. Kelley, who also made the arrest, did not testify. He was in Baltimore with the Cumberland police department pistol team.

Reckless Driver Fined

Another driver, Charles C. Smith, 635 Oldtown road, was fined $5 and costs after he pleaded guilty to a charge of reckless driving.

Smith was taken into custody Sept. 4 by State Trooper B. C. Mason after the truck he was operating, going from Cumberland, collided with a motorcycle on Long Hill, about a mile beyond the city limits.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin J. Bohn, traveling from Hagerstown, were riding the motorcycle. The machine was badly damaged, and both were injured.

Peace Rally Slated For Tuesday Night

Frederick J. Libby, Washington, D. C., secretary of the National Council for the Prevention of War, will be the principal speaker at the peace rally program scheduled for tomorrow evening at 7:45 o'clock at Fort Hill High School.

Fort Hill high school band, under the direction of Victor H. Bismann, will open the program as the Community Choir directed by W. Wallace Ashley, will sing to the close.

Births

Mr. and Mrs. Howard J. DeWitt, 813 Maryland avenue, announced the birth of a daughter yesterday afternoon at Allegany hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wilson, Decatur street, announce the birth of a son yesterday morning at Allegany hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Jamieson, 421 North Mechanic street, announce the birth of a daughter Saturday afternoon at Memorial hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald S. Davis, 429 North Centre street, announce the birth of a daughter Saturday morning at Allegany hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Austin VanMetre, Flintstone, announce the birth of a son Saturday morning at Allegany hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie C. Long, Maryland avenue, announce the birth of a daughter Saturday home.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Henry Williams street, announce the birth of a son late Friday night at Allegany hospital.

Accident Occurs After They Leave Dixie Inn

Three Cumberland men were injured late yesterday afternoon when their car was forced off the road by an unidentified driver near Dixie Inn on the Fort Ashby road. Two were critically injured.

Driver Least Hurt

Driver of the car, Charles A. Holtzman, 27, of 450 Arch street, suffered a laceration near his right eye and several broken ribs.

"We had just left Dixie Inn and were riding along talking when a sudden car came at us. That's about all I remember. I came to," Holtzman said.

According to Holtzman, the accident occurred after the "mystery car" rounded a curve and crossed him off the road on the right side. The car he was driving, an eye model, turned completely over and was badly damaged.

Other Driver Fails to Stop

The driver of the other car did not stop to investigate after allegedly forcing Holtzman from the road.

All three men, who had been at the Inn dancing prior to the mishap, were knocked unconscious. They were brought to Memorial hospital by a passer-by.

Holtzman was released from the hospital after being treated. Cordy was reported in a "serious" condition, and Ternent, operator of South Cumberland theater, was said to be "fair" late last night.

Ridgeley Chief of Police C. Barnard was still investigating the accident last night.
